The power of integrity and the poverty of dissimulation

After 700 days in the Core Civic private gulag in Pahrump, Nevada, a weary but smiling Cliven Bundy emerged from the federal courthouse at 333 Las Vegas Blvd a free man. Refusing release for more than a month when his sons Ryan, Ammon, Mel and Dave along with co-defendants Ryan Payne, Jason Woods, Joe O’Shaughnessy were released with ankle tracking devices, curfews and conditions, Cliven insisted he went to prison a free man and would only agree to leave as a free man.

That freedom came on January 8 when federal presiding judge Gloria Navarro could no longer conceal the government’s lies and criminal misconduct. Beginning with a mistrial on December 20, both sides were given time to submit their cases for whether this should become a permanent dismissal with prejudice stating multiple times she was “not aware of a more egregious case,” that the “universal sense of justice has been violated.”

Covering her assets?
After repeatedly denying the defendants’ constitutional rights to bail and speedy sense of justice has been violated.

The next-day press conference in front of Sheriff Joe Lombardo’s office had to be postponed due to downsours but happened on the 10th. With his credibility in shreds, thanks in part to Valley Forge Network on You Tube, Lombardo ignored Bundy’s invitation to join him before the cameras. The rancher candidly spoke through a microphone and speaker. His assessment that he is no further along than he was four years ago is, unfortunately, accurate.

Like bowing jackals, Kieran Suckling’s left-funded Center for Biological Diversity Nevada director Patrick Donnelly said “The Trump administration is colluding violent zealots and preventing the public from feeling safe to enjoy our new national monument.” However, the facts – which the Left is seemingly allergic to – show that those violent zealots were the Bureau of Land Management.

Moment of truth
For, as National Review’s David French wrote, “On one side was a collection of dangerous, out-of-control armed men who were deliberately provocative, prone to say ‘enough things in a single-minded quest to destroy their enemies, and who lied time and again to cover their misdeeds.’ French continued: ‘On the other side was Cliven Bundy.’

The SPLC’s journalist, a fixture at the Tier One trial, walked across the plaza away from federal court shaking his head. Not one word written about the criminal and continuous misconduct of Steve Myhre and his cohorts at the U. S. Attorney’s office. The only statement from SPLC: “We’re disappointed that Cliven Bundy & other anti-government extremists will not be re-tried for their involvement in an armed 2014 standoff w/ the federal government. This result can only embolden anti-government extremists.”

Victory straight ahead
Yes, perhaps other God-fearing, freedom-loving, ‘we’re-had-enough-of-Communism-and-want-the-Constitution-back Americans and people of the world will finally say, ‘We’re not going to take this abusive’ (See “A victory,” page 5)

Fake news wasn’t born just yesterday

ALL networks and news outlets were obligingly scrounging up a few tattered old survivor stories in which to wrap themselves. An already-boredom-inspiring January 27 “Holocaust Remembrance Day” was coming up. This occasion, created by the United Nations on a voice vote in 2005 (Israel was presiding over the assembly), instantly became a media munchkin’s duty and delight—a murder “holocaust” performance masquerading before the public as “our common history.”

RESIDENTS of Melbourne, Australia, must resort to such anti-crime measures as installing bollards on their driveways—to protect themselves from non-White crime sweeping that city, a data release from the Third World immigration into the country, says the Daily Telegraph.

PALESTINIAN President Mahmoud Abbas has said that the U.S. move to recognize Jerusalem al-Quds as Israel’s capital killed the Oslo Accords. Abbas made the remarks during a meeting with Israel’s Meretz political party leader Zehava Galon. The Oslo Accords were signed between the Israeli regime and Palestine Liberation Organizations during the early-mid 1990s to resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and to guarantee the Palestinians’ right of self-determination.

The Trump Administration’s newly released “immigration outline” projects a “preemptive surrender,” which will mean guarantee the Palestinians’ right of self-determination. THE TRUMP Administration’s newly released “immigration outline” projects a “preemptive surrender,” which will mean giving up to two million illegal aliens—a number far greater than what even was considered during Obama’s presidency, the Center for Immigration Studies warns. We need a wall around the Whore House.

IF ONLY America had joined the 1963 Anti-Communist Pact like we should have (that anti-Communist treaty was signed by Japan, Italy and Germany), World War II never could have happened. Instead, those four powers would have aimed their guns at the criminal, Jewish Bolsheviek “Soviet Union.” But, no, a crippled Comminist F. D. Roosevelt and his many Jewish handlers (e.g., Bernard Baruch) got cozy with the murderous Soviet thugs in November 1933 long before Hitler opened up the so-called “extermination” camps or invaded any country. Roosevelt chose sides with evil—and now he’s a “hero” for having done so!

BRITISH oil and gas company BP won the contract for Iraq’s Rumaila Oil Field back in 2009, and now boasts of its drilling capabilities on Twitter. Rumaila is simply huge, by some measures the third largest reserve of crude oil on the planet, currently extracting 100 million dollars worth of oil every day.

NORTH KOREA has condemned U.S. sanctions against Pyongyang as an attempt at sabotaging dialogue with South Korea. The two parts recently started face-to-face talks to defuse tensions, Pyongyang having begun that dialog, putting the U.S. in an awkward situation.

The First Freedom

By Todd Starnes

For the past several years progressive news organizations have been waging a culture jihad across the nation, turning our nation’s heritage into a pile of rubble. Sadly, my hometown of Memphis, Tennessee, has suffered a similar fate.

Stealth

While most of the good citizens of Memphis were attending Wednesday night church services, the mayor and city council were busy finalizing a despicable plot to bypass the law and desecrate a Civil War gravesite.

In October the Tennessee Historical Commission agreed with a lawsuit brought by a county commissioner to remove statues of Nathan Bedford Forrest and Jefferson Davis from two city parks. The city initiated mediation with the state, but that too, was unsuccessful.

Instead of following the ruling, the mayor and the city council concocted a nefarious plan to disobey the law and desecrate the statues.

Here’s how it happened:

The city council voted to sell two public parks to a newly formed non profit group chaired by a county commissioner. Anybody smell a rat? The two parks–both prized parks to a newly formed non profit group chaired by a county commissioner. Anybody smell a rat? The two parks–both prized

The British council voted to sell two public parks to a newly formed non profit group chaired by a county commissioner. Anybody smell a rat? The two parks–both prized

While the city council was voting, heavy machinery and an army of police officers were busy finalizing a despicable plot to remove statues of Forrest and Davis, and thus we are your dependable

We must have nothing to do with the monuments or memorialized. It has nothing to do with selling off prime real estate at a bargain-basement price. My fury has to do with this flagrant violation of the law.

Blasphemy

Memphis Mayor Jim Strickland and the Memphis City Council flouted that law, violated their oaths of office and desecrated a gravesite.

I was the governor and State legislature to launch an immediate investigation of the corruption that has infested Memphis City Hall. The law demands it.

My fury has to do with this flagrant violation of the law.

Serious, now

A priest, a minister and a rabbi discuss the best positions for prayer, while nearby this telephone repairing is busily at work.

"Kneeling is definitely the optimal position to pray," the rabbi interjects.

"No," replies the minister. "I get the best results standing with hands outstretched to Heaven.

"We’re both wrong," the guru intones.

"The most effective prayer position is by lying down on the floor," the rabbi says.

Our reverend's attempts to remain himself no longer. "Hey, fellas," interrupts. "The best praying I ever did was when I was hanging upside down from a telephone pole."

The First Freedom

Self-government begins at home

Speech and religion were already ours back when FDR named “four freedoms.” But he would whippersnapper, fear and oppression, abating forever from Europe’s wars. When politics in the States bites off what only civilians can chew. It’s time we removed those powers not delegated.

We're all Palestinians

By Matthew Heimbach

The battle for a free world is not over until every Nation is free from Jewish control. As the world has found out, over one hundred times now, it is not enough just to drive Jews beyond your borders and then take a sigh of relief. As in the movie villain, the Jews will always return in another land and rebuild their strength. All people must be free or – eventually – none of us will be.

There is a debate within White Nationalism today over the issue of Palestine and the future of the Palestinian people.

While none is on the side of the Zionist occupation, at least none arguing in good faith, there is a belief among some that the freedom and sovereignty of Palestinians is not an issue that White Nationalists should care about. This apathetic view of the Palestinian crisis is sometimes presented as anti-Islamic or anti-Jewish sentiment. Far from being part of a larger problem where our cause is often perceived as aligned with and supportive of Zionist, colonialism, and Western militarism, some White Nationalists routinely claim, while trying to be clever, that our cause is similar to Zionism, betraying that they understand or care about White Nationalism’s future.

While we stand in solidarity with our Western allies in opposing the Zionist occupation, TradWorker’s forward-looking post-colonial, anti-colonial geopolitical framework is incompatible with White Nationalism’s racist, anti-Semitic, and anti-Muslim policies for the bygone days when Western people got to be junior partners in the global colonialist project. Our nationalists often either want to advance toward a White Nationalism or be transformed to non-Zionist anti-fascist nationalism.

Are you worried about America's invasion by illegal third world immigrants?

Have you been denied employment opportunities because of Affirmative Action programs?

Are you concerned about the war being waged against Christianity, and that our cultural heritage is under assault by the wicked "usual suspects"?

You want to make a difference by joining the Council of Conservative Citizens?

For 30 years, the CoC has fought for America's culture and heritage, and has won legal and political battles to protect our heritage and liberties.

We 're all Palestinians

Zionism where we also become a threat to other nationalists around the world or retreat to a paeonian isolationist indifference where we fail to stand for other nationalists around the world.

Here and now

Whether it’s Palestine’s Hamas, Syria’s Ba’ath Party, Lebanon’s Hezbollah, the Philippines’ Duterte, the DPRK, Iran, or even China, there’s an ascendant movement around the world that will continue to show the West’s central banking machine and the globalist Enlightenment trops it chases out. It’s hard to see the full picture from right in the middle of the American propaganda machine. It’s hard to wrap our minds around America’s inexorable geopolitical death spiral, but America, the European Union and Israel are falling behind. Whites in America and Europe alike are “People of Colonialism,” no matter what your real name is. The Jews today seem to have no moral or practical obligation to remain tied to the fate of a “Western Civilization” which is no longer either “Western” or civilized.

The Kurds, the Ukrainians, Saudi Arabia, the modern Sinn Fin and the Scottish Nationalists, and the Afrikaners, among others, want and fight for self-determination.

The end of constant Zionist meddling in the Middle East means no more blank check for Israeli imperialism against America’s taxpayers. American soldiers will no longer be sent to die and be mangled by the blood pruners. There will be no more millions of refugees forced into Europe to flee wars caused by the Jews and their allies, and it means that actual stable states and nation-states can come to stay in power in order to defeat Wahhabi terrorists.

The coming realignments

Legal precedent for self determination on the international stage is clear for Palestine, which sets up a further argument on the international stage for our people to one day pursue our own ethno-state. For us to achieve our goal of our own National Socialist ethno-state, we need international allies and global momentum in the world for multiple Nations to be created under the banner of self-determination.

Around the world there are two main sides taking shape in geopolitics and the global economy, the American / E.U. / Israeli / Saudi / NATO “Allies” and the Russia / Iranian / Syrian / Chinese “Axis of Evil.” Continued slavery under the boot of the Jewish controlled powers means our genocide, plain and simple. There will be no ethno-state without friends from overseas and finding shared geopolitical, economic currencies and military interests. The likely embargo of our future Nation and attempted subversion by Jewish puppet States means that friendly relationships with nationalist countries both at home and abroad will be key to our ability to develop and build our independent Nation.

Palestine is perhaps the clearest example in modern world history of how the world and our own people the brutality of the Jews, their hate of anyone who isn’t Jewish, and their plans to create Greater Israel but to control the entire globe. Through exposing the evil actions of the Jews in Israel, and the global Jewish Occult, and more importantly, we can further awaken the world population to the Jewish threat.

The best of motives

Lastly and perhaps most importantly, we must be consistent in our ideology. As General Leon Degrelle said on National Socialism that it “meant re-discovering the creative values of their own race, re-discovering their culture. It was a search for excellence, a noble ideal.” National Socialist racialism was not against the other races, it was for its own race. It aimed at defending and improving its race, and within the sphere of all other races did the same for themselves.”

We as National Socialists want other peoples to be free, to be able to chart their own destiny, create their own future, strive for new heights of their civilization.

The National Socialist worldview is one where the revolution never truly ends. Each people has the right to form, create, and define themselves, making their people and culture stronger and healthier in mind, body, and spirit.

National Socialism is respectful towards other peoples, while always putting our own people first. If we want self-determination, it is in our best interest for us to support the same right for others that strive for freedom.

Imperial capitalism and Zionism impact all Nations, depriving us all of our basic rights as free people.

Advancing to sovereignty

The White population of America deserves self determination and the right to chart their own destiny. The Afrikaners deserve self determination, and so do the Japanese, the Taiwanese, the Vietnamese, the Cubans, the Palestinians and every other people. American globalism is a global struggle.

This is the only way for us to ensure our children and future generations will be free from debt and slavery, that is driven by the spirit of cooperation, support and true freedom from exploitation.

No longer will the Jews and their capitalist lackeys be abl e to turn different Nations against one another to fight over the scrapbook that fall off their table. Instead we will, for the first time in human history, have a world where we are free and sovereign. We must defeat the Jews and imperialism once and for all. This is a final battle of liberation for all of us as our shared chains of debt slavery, occupation and exploitation, so that all children might be able to grow up free.

White Nationalism has figured out to be an open air prison camp under the Jewish oligarchs, Palestine is literally an open air prison camp. While the whole world is driven by the monopoly money machine, Israel blockade and wastes everything in and out of Palestine. White Nationalism has figured out to be an open air prison camp. Israel wastes the lives of our men and women who are gullible enough to sign up for military/mercenary service, Palestinian women and men who are forced to work in the shackled by the Jewish State in their homes and nurseries.

The struggle against the Jewish oligarchs is similar to any other struggle against the Jewish State. The Jews stand and fight, share the same globalist fate if we don’t prevail. We are all Palestinians now. So with that I must say...

With regard to the Jerusalem Embassy, I have a different take. I am actually pleased that Trump recognized Jerusalem as counterfeit Israel’s capital. Here’s why.

For years the Israelis have been taking east Jerusalem territory away from the Palestinians while the U.S. government publicly decried the moves and privately supported them. This occurred no matter who was President: the Bush boys, Clinton or Obama. The Zionist Occupation Government (ZOG) in Washington D.C. long ago recognized Jerusalem as the Israeli capital in all but name. This permitted them to deceive the Palestinians while covertly encouraging the perennial enlargement of those Zionists’ empire.

Palestinians are like the German people politically naïve. They have observed the U.S. unconditionally back Israel mass murder and land theft, yet continued to believe that somewhere, somehow, the U.S. was still a bit of an “honest broker” for peace.

This crippling illusion has now been shattered by President Donald “Super Israel” Trump. The face of the United States “deploring” Israeli dispossession of the Palestinians is up in smoke. The mask is off. Now it’s official and even the guilt-ridden Palestinians have finally seen the ruse for what it is. The heads of state in the West (with the exception of a few tiny countries such as Norway and Portugal) are all in a conspiracy to assist the Israelis in building “Erez Israel,” while confining Palestinians to ever-shrinking apartheid ghettoes. From this sobering truth some good will come.

Israel worried about Gaza?
By Jonathan Cook
globalsearch.co

Last month Israeli military officials for the first time echoed what human rights groups have been saying for some time: that Gaza’s economy and infrastructure stand on the brink of collapse.

They should know.

More than ten years ago the Israeli army tightened its grip on Gaza, enforcing a blockade that has lasted ever since. The tiny coastal enclave that left much of its two million population there unemployed, impoverished and hopeless.

Some studies have linked three separate major military assaults that have destroyed Gaza’s infrastructure, killed many thousands and left tens of thousands of Gazans internally displaced.

Gaza is effectively an open-air prison, an extremely overcrowded one with only a few hours of electricity a day, its ground water polluted by sewage and garbage.

After a decade of this horrific experiment in human endurance, the Israeli army is finally concerned about whether Gaza can cope much longer.

In recent days it has begun handing out forms, with more than a dozen questions, to families of Palestinians who want to let out of Gaza — mainly business people trading with Israel, those needing emergency medical treatment and family members accompanying them.

One question asks bluntly whether they are happy, another whom they blame for their sufferings and one about the possibility of the family members accompanying them.

But the survey does suggest that Israel’s top brass may be open to new thinking, after decades of treating Palestinians only as target practice, labs rats or sheep to be herded into cities — freeing up land for Jewish settlers. Has the army finally seen that Palestinians are humans, too, and acknowledged our right to self-government?

Have our States been allowed the right to govern themselves?

Are we prepared to follow the example set by the United States, even if it meant a simple pike into battle? Many fought barefooted, on starvation diets; most wore inadequate clothing in all kinds of weather and storms. We did it with only a blanket as protection from the cold. Will their descendants today that the子孙后代 already know the answer.

We are prepared to do our part. We are prepared to resist Jewish hegemony. Any future assassins will be targets of our anti-C interstate tyranny running rampant.

Only time will tell if fight remains in the souls of our contemporaries in Washington D.C., Madrid or elsewhere.

Israel: How will the United States do what ever they want. This is something our European countries are used to do with their children.

In 1998 A.D., the Roman historian Tacitus wrote about the various Germanic tribes, often with admiration regarding their apparent loyalty to wives who in turn were given as gifts to Germanic princes. In my opinion, one of the most important observations made by Tacitus was that peaceable Germanic tribes were often overrun by the more aggressive tribes.

Does this observation from the distant past have a meaning for us today?

It is reported that a United President Jefferson Davis stated the following in July of 1864, during the War Against Yankee Aggression: “I tried in all my power to prevent this war. I have been among you sixteen years, I worked night and day to prevent it, but I could not. The North was mad and blind; it would not let us govern ourselves, and so the war came. It is the 20th of April 1865 for the last man of this generation falls in his tracks, and his children seized the musket and fight our battle, unless you resist Jewish hegemony.

Do we plan to resist?

According to local media, the army in fact is fighting. It is prepared to fight, but bad people will find a way around the laws. This is a warning to those who hopes to spread the word.

We are preparing to do what ever we want. This is something our European countries are used to do with their children.

In the United States, many states have ignored the laws; but, do laws even matter if they are only ignored by the thugs in power? Does this observation from the distant past have a meaning for us today?

tyranny from Pro-Government Extremists any longer.

Apparatchik

The Oregonian’s Maxine Bernstein put together perhaps the worst compilation yet of Government Supremacist propaganda and lies calling the criminal behavior of the BLM and its radical alphabet agencies a “mistake” and quoting bureaucrats calling Cliven Bundy “delusional.” Activist Laz Ercantrac caught Bernstein in the hallway outside of Courtroom 7C the morning of the dismissal. He loudly and subject them to direct examination in an evidentiary hearing for their roles in this travesty. Great to contemplate, but unlikely to happen. Navarro is anxious to get this over — and called the attorneys asking that their motions to dismiss be in a timely manner.

Getting the entire Bundy Saga on the record in Federal Court won’t happen. The court orders to impound their cattle stand in spite of a motion to vacate. Sucking and his cohorts are begging for the BLM to go back for the cattle. The irony of BLM bureaucrats spouting “We’re a nation of laws” will come when Cliven Bundy’s full testimony shows that the only lawbreakers in all these proceedings are with the U.S. Government. Every charge leveled in the indictment including conspiracy to impede or harm and massive armed assault is in fact, what the government did at the Bundy Ranch. Karl Marx’s favorite maxim, Accuse the Bundys would forfeit the ranch if they lost. Defendants who accepted plea deals and convicted defendants such as Todd Engel and Greg Burleson, should, if there is one iota of justice left in America, have their pleas vacated and convictions overturned. The battle against tyranny and utter corruption continues. With all that’s been exposed about Uranium One, Dwight and Steven Hammond deserve to have their sentences commuted. LaVoy Finicum’s family deserves justice, as does the family of slain Idaho rancher Jack Yantis. But, for today, the Bundy family and co-defendants will celebrate the return of their fathers, sons, grandfather, brothers and uncles.

most accurately thundered that it was Bernstein’s writing that led to the murder of LaVoy Finicum. It’s not Marxist Media propaganda that this advice or the SPLC’s coverage that is so frustrating. The Left is expected to be ludicrous. No, it’s the fact that, after thousands of hours of the Bundy family’s patiently giving interviews, that such sites masquerading as conservative continue to misreport what happened on April 12, 2014, in Bunkerville, Nevada.

Freak “news”

For instance, The Intercept, a site by journalist Glenn Greenwald, recently in “America Reloaded – The Bizare Story Behind the FBI’s Fake Documentary About the Bundy Family” ridiculously states: “But the Bundys, aided by their armed supporters, beat back the government, forcing agents to release the cattle and retreat. Images of armed Bundy supporters with high-powered rifles taken on out-gunned BLM agents circulated widely across social media. As a result, the Bundys became a household name, lionized by the right as champions of individual liberty and vilified by the left as anti-government extremists.”

After nearly four years and five trials – two in Oregon and three in Nevada – this is the droll that people are subjected to. Entirely false! None of Bundy’s supporters, including Eric Parker and Scott Drexler, had high-powered rifles. Those two men only laid down behind the jersey barrier, and the Bundy family was un armed. They went to the overpass after the cattle were released. Most protesters, in fact, staged at a photographer’s request with the cattle when BLM agents were un armed. They went to the overpass above the Toquop Wash to watch the cattle being released after the Sheriff had already passed along the BLM’s announcement the morning before they were ceasing their operation.

Protesters were stunned when they got to the overpass to discover the BLM was escalating instead of easing the conflict. Eric Parker, incidentally, was recently applauded by the Idaho State Legislature.

Federal agents to face trial

Mel Bundy, a Tier Two defendant along with his brother Dave, Joe O’Shaughnessy and Jason Woods, still wearing the ankle tracking devices, said they’re confident of getting added to this dismissal but also have other strategies. After nearly two years in jail, none of the defendants have their Day In Court. Tier Three was not allowed to put on defense and Tier One is now dismissed because of a mountain of Brady violations (withholding evidence that would’ve been exculpatory or the defense) after only four government witnesses. Tier Two clearly wants to tell the full story. A Joint Motion to Disqualify the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the District of Nevada was filed on January 12 by the Tier Two attorneys. They not only want Myhre, Creegan, Schiss and Ahmed disqualified, they want to put these four on the witness stand and have their testimony heard in an evidentiary hearing for their roles in this travesty. Great to contemplate, but unlikely to happen. Navarro is anxious to get this over – and called the attorneys asking that their motions to dismiss be in a timely manner.

Rattling their cages in Tallahassee

The Florida Chapter, League of the South, held a sovereignty rally in Tallahassee at the old Florida State Capitol building on Saturday, January 27.

By Hunter Wallace occultissimont.com

When the Florida League of the South held its Restore State Sovereignty rally this January 27 at the Old State Capitol Building in Tallahassee, around thirty League members squared off against 100 counter-protesters. State police kept both sides separated. Unlike Charlotteville, there appears to have been no violence or issues when police are allowed to do their jobs. There have been two League of the South rallies at this location before. The first was an anti-Marco Rubio rally on March 10, 2014. The second was the Reds Out Florida rally on April 18, 2015. The League of the South also put up a SECEDE billboard on Apalachee Parkway in February 2014. The Florida League of the South has been active in and around Tallahassee for years now.

Zoological trash

The usual suspects showed up to counter-protest: virtue signaling liberals who work for the Florida State government, militant Black Power activists, the local sepoys, militant transsexuals and the SDS Communist scum from FSU. We’ve seen this crowd before in Tallahassee. Last time I was there, I argued with them that I had transitioned into a werewolf.

The Führer and his Movement

In the news lately was the story about a bell still in active use in Austria that was dedicated to Adolf Hitler. A rare find today, they were common during the Third Reich, when towns all through Germany and Austria sent requests in to the Führer’s private chancellery for him to lend his name to a bell, a street or a building. Screening such requests before passing them on to Hitler was a primary task of Reichsleiter Philipp Bouhler, part of the Nazi movement since his early twenties. Physically limited because of a wound suffered in World War I, Bouhler functioned primarily as a publicist and an organizational expert, handling the party’s finances and kept himself close to a Hitler who had got out of prison and assumed the title of Führer.

Reichsleiter Philipp Bouhler

The “German Workers’ Party,” founded by Schirachleiter Karl Harrer on the 5th of January 1919, had almost no political existence. The six members of the party formed a union of well-meaning nationalist men who knew about the futile activities of Marxism and thus felt left out of the mainstream of German working classes back to the Nation. Although the knowledge of these men was no doubt true, they were not allowed to translate their plans into reality. They had no money but that was not the worst part. They lacked a great grand idea that would have influenced the masses. How could they translate their plans into reality? In later years the Führer came to believe that a program for recognition was necessary, not simply a political platform. It was the organizational core of the National Socialist Movement that should gradually take over the entire German Nation. The national community had to be the focus, not the individual, for blood and bound to the native soil. All differences of political, social or religious doctrine that hitherto had dispersed Nations in a state of disunity would have to be overcome. Any small-minded impulse of self interest in individuals or groups had to be drowned out by the task, which all Germans must act in a united manner.

Decision time

Of what importance is the question of the form of government, the conflict over ecclesiastical problems, or the hate-filled disputes between workers and owners in view of the national community? What is inordinately over the life or ruin of Germany? An organization, as Adolf Hitler envisaged it, was not only a State which could replace the State, but the strong foundation to a new Reich. The Führer picked those 16 men out of the small-minded impulse of self interest, that materialized in Adolf Hitler higher than their own lives. Destiny accepted this task, because they possessed that the ideal materialized in Hitler. Hitler’s heritage with the goal of turning the Federal means of power. All by himself he saw the destruction of every political and social order in Germany. He was convinced that when we acted the way we had to act, we did have to act in this and no other way, because we were waiting for a new Reich. They followed the loud call of an ideal that talked to them through the words of Adolf Hitler. They were ready to accept his lead, because they knew that he was possessed by the idea that materialized in Hitler. Hitler had the courage when, supported only by his own resolution, he challenged the existing system and declared the government that represented the National Socialist Movement as the federal means of power. All by himself he carried the burden of responsibility for everything that was to result from this coup. His effort failed. It could not bring to an end the five years of fatal destiny that had crushed Germany. The system of the 9th of November 1918 remained in charge, devastating the entire Nation. The attempt of Adolf Hitler and his friends was not a complete failure, however.

Delayed but determined

In later years the Führer came to believe that on the 9th of November 1923 the time had not yet been ripe for victory. On the 9th of November 1933, at the 10th anniversary celebrated in the Brüggerbrückel, he called the failed attempt, “Wisdom of Providence,” but added: “and yet I am convinced that when we acted the way we did, we had to act in this and no other way, because we were waiting for a new Reich.” Those men did not follow a phantom, but the call of their hearts beneath the flag with the swastika when they marched under the Führer’s command to a new Reich. They followed the loud call of an ideal that talked to them through the words of Adolf Hitler. They were ready to accept his lead, because they knew that he was possessed by the idea that materialized in Hitler. Hitler had the courage when, supported only by his own resolution, he challenged the existing system and declared the government that represented the National Socialist Movement as the federal means of power. All by himself he carried the burden of responsibility for everything that was to result from this coup. His effort failed. It could not bring to an end the five years of fatal destiny that had crushed Germany. The system of the 9th of November 1918 remained in charge, devastating the entire Nation. The attempt of Adolf Hitler and his friends was not a complete failure, however.

Strategic move

Now the Führer clearly saw the necessity to continue his fight on a completely legal basis. That, however, meant a change in tact to avoid the possibility that the party would be suppressed again and consequently the propaganda possibilities were limited. Nevertheless the fight against enslavement would proceed... of consensus was carried on pitilessly and by the use of all legal means. Likewise, the German National Socialists carried on fighting influences on all fields progressed.

Gradually the Movement came to a firm footing in the parliament outside of Bayern. The German National Socialists in Bayern under the leadership of Brüning in 1930, then in Braunschwieg and Anhalt.

While the political conflict continued in this way with unbroken vehemence and with the increasing number of Nazi parades, the ranks of the Movement kept on growing. The position of Gauleiters was continually strengthened by the party developed organically from the bottom up. The true leaders had to emerge out of a free game of powers.

Courageous officers

Finally however, this wild growth had to be regulated and controlled. All those who had joined the Movement had been found to be suitable must have proven that they were men enough to make this service to their own will – they were acknowledged and from then on protected against all the attacks of the enemies of the Movement. Several meetings and parades had spread all over the Nation, one after the other was made part of a Ga[i District]. The position of Gauleiter was given only to those men who, born in combat, had conquered their territories by themselves.

In this way, fighting, working, and combating continued. The German National Socialism stood up in all parts of Germany. They drove around relentlessly, always talking, always fighting. They were finding opinion leaders and had to get along with, often stubborn and individualistic. But how else could they have performed the almost superhuman task set before them? Again and again the planting of the flag of Adolf Hitler

Music

There was a time when many lawyers wanted to destroy the party: there were rebels within the party, selfish, ambitious and corrupted subjects who were willing to give it up. They wanted National Socialist Reichswehr to split or to subdivide the party. There were enemies from all sides who, full of hate and in great number, tried to crush the Movement. But the party with strong efforts, staying and enduring, against the lying and defaming, as well as boycott and terror; there were over-zealous party members who misunderstood the true meaning of the Movement, who, instead of guiding the way to the new Party, were hindering the Movement as (they) provided the authorities with a good reason to suppress the Movement. But, whereas Adolf Hitler and his Reichswehr with their iron logic in his line of argumentation, with his personal power and whole existence belonged to the Führer of the Nation, the founder of the German Reich and its founder and Führer.

The First Freedom

The Führer had therefore to end the strained relations with Austria by way of an agreement. Despite all promises, the Austrian government did not give up its hostile attitude toward National Socialists. Then, on the 12th of February 1938, the Führer met with the Austrian Chancellor on the Oberalsberg and Mr. Schuschnigg agreed to grant full equal rights to Austrian National Socialists. The movement he arrived home however, Schuschnigg thought of treason. On the 9th of March he announced a referendum to decide on Austria’s independence. Not only was such a procedure unconstitutional but it defined the Austrian Chancellor as a traitor. The Austrian Chancellor admitted that it was impossible to conclude a referendum in three days without any preparation and without any ballots. To get along with, of ten stubborn and hard, coarse and rough men, not at all easy. But, whereas Adolf Hitler and his Reichswehr were ruined and trials were aimed at beating men and throwing in jail. The filth of exposed to persecution. They were not in the world a banner in the victory and some broke down physically. Others lost their belief in the eventual remembrance the of way for the Movement like a banner in the year however, was yet to come.

Virtue and integrity

It was the year 1932 when the opposing forces concentrated the most, demanding the very best of every man, from the Führer to the common party member. The year 1932 was the year of elections for the Reichspräsidenten, the elections for the Reichstag, the numerous elections for the Landtags and Bürgeramt. At that time, the German National Socialists four times and during the 14 days of the third trip he made speeches before 49 mass meetings. They were1 accompanied by a wave of propaganda that until then was unheard of. The year 1932 saw those colorful changes in the cabinets of Breslau and Berlin and it marked the prohibition of the SA as well as a state of national emergency. It was in this year that the government tried in vain to push the German National Socialists from power. The Führer however saw the constant vice of the communist wave as well as Gregor Strasser’s stab in the back; and finally we saw the severance of the finest German blood shed for the rebirth of the Reich. But even that year went by and when, on the 30th of January 1933 it was announced that by the Nazis Adolf Hitler Reichskanzler the entire German Nation was deeply affected.

There were those who worried because of the change in the government and who hoped that they would not end up in prison, that they would not end up in prison. They looked into the future with a dread. Some of them preferred to grab their money and flee across the border so that they might live another day to lie dying and defaming, as well as boycott and terror; there were over-zealous party members who misunderstood the true meaning of the Movement, who, instead of guiding the way to the new Party, were hindering the Movement as (they) provided the authorities with a good reason to suppress the Movement.

Once again Germany belonged to the Führer of the Nation, the founder of the German Reich and its founder and Führer.

It was not an idea alone with the dynamic power to break down the bastions of the old system that had conquered Germany, and it was not only through powerful speeches in which the Führer had hammering the new Weltanschauung into the hearts and brains of the new generation; it was the personal, peerless Führer of Germany. He, from the very beginning had been the driving force behind the idea. His personality had guaranteed success. The power of his charisma are grounded in the totality of his genius and in the harmony of his soul and body. He, chosen by Providence to bring about a change in word. As dazzling as may seem the contrasts in the Führer’s genius and his physical appearance, in which he is attracted and which he masters, it is exactly this multiplicity of mutually supporting talents and inclinations that coalesced into a personality in this perfection of his genius. Thus the Führer, whose roots are in the fine arts, made his way along the path of a political leader, and that of a soldier. He tops the creations of a politician with the military success of a general. His creative imagination, which endows him with that rare combination turned by a razor-sharp logic and an extraordinary instinct for reality. His sense for the needs and necessity of everyday life is as clear as his calculations on all fields of arts and esthetics. He has the political attitude of a soldier so his warfare has to yield to political necessities. He elevated the power of national socialism and turned it into the art of governing and the art of war. Therefore, it is only logical that the Führer had already finished an outline of a cultural program and had made plans for huge buildings and revolutionary urban projects at a time when he was still fighting for the country. The Führer had indeed in that very time when he had to battle the combating influences of the Jewish-Maoist system sometimes even by using brute force. It is only logical that after such a fight an armed force and formed the domestic and foreign policies of the new Reich, he began to carry through all the cultural plans. Thus the Führer clearly understood the new situation and prepared the ground for an economical rising.

A visionary

Cool and calculating minds could not follow the Führer until actual events proved his prophetic correct and made the way for his future program visible. Thus, his claim to leadership was supported by the facts as well as by success. But, long before all this became clear, though he was aware of his power, the Führer, in him who despite actual circumstances had promised to resurrect beleaguered Germany and to guide the way to unknown magnitude. But, he could not succeed in his task of creating a Germany as a whole believed in, it was the man, the personality Adolf Hitler. This was the secret process by which the German National Socialists attracted fighters from all Districts like a magnet, by virtue of his personality. He welded them together in a blood brotherhood and thus won the Reich.

Time of struggle

Today the whole German Nation not only feels the work of its own acts visible, but it is ready to sacrifice everything and feels deep love for the father of the Nation; feelings that are main thing of a nation. This man rose out of the people and thus has an understanding for the worries and miseries of the people. He understands the masses and fills them with faithful confidence to see this man’s solidarity with them, his loyalty towards his fellow countrymen, and hence to his right to the Führer of the Nation. He deeply feels for the great and beautiful and his immense goodness of heart that shines through even if, in national interest, he has to impose a new creed. He valued the personality of Adolf Hitler so special, however, is the shining example to give.to the people. The people know that the Führer demands the most from himself and never demands anything from anybody that he is not ready to do himself. The people are content in the knowledge that his work and whole existence belong to Germany and that he himself sacrifices his private considerations. If a word, he leads the way for his people as a standard bearer – visible for everybody, the Führer of the Nation, the founder of the v.

Case #18CVS0048

Donald Sullivan, Plaintiff

Pender County and Town of Atkinson, Defendants

COMPLAINT

Comes now Plaintiff Donald Sullivan, a private, flesh and blood man, specially and limited but not generally, seeking a declaratory judgment against the Defendants PENDER COUNTY and TOWN OF ATKINSON under the United States Constitution and the North Carolina Constitution.

The Court

1. Donald Sullivan is a 69-year-old natural man, domiciled in Pender County, with a mailing address of PO Box 441, Atkinson, North Carolina.

2. Defendant PENDER COUNTY is a corporation, capable of suing and being sued, with a mailing address of PO Box 5, Burgaw, North Carolina 28425.

3. TOWN OF ATKINSON, Defendant, is a corporation, capable of suing and being sued, with a mailing address of PO Box 160, Atkinson, North Carolina 28421.

4. Defendants are currently suing the Plaintiff in the Pender County Superior Court, Case #16CVS790, for a judgment allowing property tax liens to be made against his land in Atkinson, North Carolina, and to be allowed to foreclose on said liens pursuant to NCGS 105-241.

5. Plaintiff complains that said statute in its entirety and in specific stands in violation of the United States Constitution, as set forth in Article I, Section 6, of the United States Constitution, and in particular, as it is in contravention to Article I, Section 6, of the United States Constitution.

Support of his complaint, Plaintiff says as follows:

1. Article I, Section 6, of the United States Constitution states, in part: “No State... make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in Payment of Debts...”

2. Article I, Section 5, of the North Carolina Constitution states, “Every citizen of this State owes paramount allegiance to the Constitution and government of the United States, and no law or ordinance of this State in contravention or subversion thereof shall have or be given effect.”

3. NCGS 105-241, 5th paragraph: “Where and how taxes payable; tax period; liens. (a) Form of Payment. – Taxes are payable in the national currency.” (Emphasis added)

4. Article VI, Clause 3, of the United States Constitution states, in part: “...all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by Oath or Affirmation, to support this Constitution...”

5. Article VI, Clause 7, of the North Carolina Constitution states, “Before entering upon the duties of an office, a person elected or appointed to the office shall take and subscribe the following oath: ‘I, ... do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States and the Constitution and laws of this State inconsistent therewith, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of my office as so help me God.”

Discusion

Article I, Section 6, was adopted as part of the US Constitution in 1787 by the Constitutional Congress in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for the sole purpose of insuring that this country would never again submit to the perils of paper currency and suffer the then well-known results of the use of a national script (currency). Prior to the ratification of that Constitution, the States suffered under several different forms of script, no different than our present Federal Reserve Notes (FRNs), the “federal currency,” all destined to become worthless, or almost so, as the direct result of their lack of any solid backing in precious metal money. To sustain the value of these currencies, Congress took drastic measures such as wage and price controls, and even declared anyone who refused the script an “enemy of the State,” to wit:

“If any person hereafter be so lost to all virtue and regard for his Country as to refuse to accept in payment of any debts, due or hereafter to become due, the currency of the United States...”

The deprecation of paper currency relative to coin followed the same sickness as of the American currency. It has  developed into first a “redeemable in coin and in literally worthless paper,” one may pay about $16.00 worth of FRNs for one dollar of silver coin on the private market. By January, 1781, the script then in use was redeemable at the rate of 100 to 1 for “hard” money. A contemporary of the Revolution, Peletiah Webster, recorded it this way:

“It ceased to pass as currency (in May, 1781), but was afterwards bought and sold as an article of speculation, at very uncertain and desultory prices [a la Bitcoin].”

Mr. Roger Sherman, a delegate to the Constitutional Congress from Connecticut, was the author of that section of Article I, Section 6, quoted above.

James Madison’s account of Mr. Sherman’s words was short and sweet:

“Mr. Sherman objecting the paper money...”

If the consent of the Legislature could authorize emissions of it, the friends of paper money would have made every exertion to get into the Legislature in order to license it.” (See George Bancroft, History of the United States of America, page 303.)

Whereas, Defendants are required by State law to collect their taxes in “legal tender,” and, therefore, are not capable of making any “compromise” with their creditors. The history of the United States Constitution, Article I, Section 10, of the United States Constitution, and rendered invalid and of “no binding force” by Article I, Section 5, of the North Carolina Constitution; and,

Whereas, Defendants have specifically attempted to cunningly coerce this court all along by declaring our “property taxes” from Defendant under this unconstitutional statute,

Plaintiff prays this court will declare NGCS 105-241 invalid in all its parts, and especially at section 105-241, unconstitutional and void on its face, as being in violation of said Article I, Section 6, of the United States Constitution, Article I, Section 10, of the United States Constitution.

The court is advised that, pursuant to Article 26A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, Article X, in part at Sections 26A-1 and 26A-2 of the General Statutes, the validity of an act of the General Assembly shall be transferred, pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 42(b)(4), to the Superior Court of Wake County and shall be heard and determined by a three-judge panel of the Superior Court of Wake County, organized as provided by subsection (b2) of this section and, as found in G.S. 1-181.1(a), in part, “Venue lies exclusively with the Wake County Superior Court with regard to any claim seeking an order or judgment of a court, either final or interlocutory, to restrain the enforcement, operation, or execution of an act of the General Assembly, or for injunctive or other relief.” Further, pursuant to G.S. 1A-1-1(b) and NGCS 105-241, a General Assembly is facially invalid on the basis that the act violates the North Carolina Constitution or federal law.

DACA – a “bill of love” or a bill of goods?

By Ilana Mercer

www.rollingstone.com

“DACA.” That’s the magic word, the “Open Sesame” of sorts, that stopped Democrats from saying President Donald Trump was silly.

DACA as an acronym means “Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals.” The policy established a grant of temporary legal status to children who were eligible on the basis of their parents’ grant of education, food stamps, health care, a shot at a job and a reprieve from deportation for those children. And they could apply for a younger lawbreaker.

Trump said “DACA,” and he said it with a smile. At a well-staged “bipartisan immigration bill roundtable” – CNN’s billing – Trump vowed to “pass a bipartisan bill of love.”

“If we do this properly, DACA, you’re not so far away from comprehensive immigration reform. And if you want to take it to the top, you do DACA, and I don’t care. I don’t care – I’ll take all the heat you want to give me, and I’ll take the heat off both the Democrats and the Republicans. My whole life has been heat. (Laughter.) I like heat, in a certain way. But I will… We’re going to come up with something to do DACA, and then we can start immediately on the phase two, which would be comprehensive… I think what we’re all saying is we’ll get a bill of love, a comprehensive immigration reform the following afternoon. Okay? We’ll take an hour off and then we’ll start.”

Whether the president knew it or not, “comprehensive immigration reform” stands for amnesty.

High on whiffs of a DACA giveaway, Democrats and their to-do dropped the charges of dementia being leveled at the president.

According to the Washington Times, they would already have all this market efficiency. Of course, if the two two different currencies.

In January 8 after receiving approval from its foreign exchange transactions. Russia and China move toward gold, away from dollar-

By Bradford Hanson

Russia and China are two of the world’s most resource-rich Nations, are drawing closer with every passing day.

As the first push for convergence, China has established a payment versus payment (PVP) system for Chinese yuan and Russian ruble transactions, in a move to create a yuan ruble clearing center in Beijing and Moscow is hardly new.

The most notable recent development took place in April, when the Russian Central Bank opened its first overseas office in Beijing on March 14, marking a step forward in forging a Beijing-Moscow alliance to bypass the U. S. dollar in the global financial system, and to phase-a gold-backed standard of trade.

As the South China Morning Post reported at the time, the new office was part of agreements made between the two neighbors “to seek stronger economic ties” since the West brought in sanctions against Russia over the Ukraine crisis and the oil-price slump hit the Russian economy.

Gold as historic medium.

At the time, Vladimir Shapovalov, a senior official at the Russian central bank, said the two central banks were drafting a memorandum of understanding to solve the technical issues around China’s gold imports from Russia, and that details would be revealed in a document that if Russia – the world’s fourth largest gold producer after China, Japan and the U. S. – is indeed set to become a major supplier of gold to China, the gold market that has been hinted by many over the years, namely that Beijing is preparing to eventually unroll a gold-backed currency, increases by orders of magnitude.

Furthermore, also around the same time, the Russian central bank was getting closer to China, China was responding in kind: the Shanghai gold bank in Moscow for handling transactions in Chinese yuan.

The Industrial and Commercial Bank of China and Russia opened a branch in Moscow as a Chinese renminbi clearing bank in Russia on January 10.

Stimulating trade.

“The financial regulatory authorities of China and Russia have signed a series of agreements that mark a new level of financial cooperation,” Dmitry Shkolnik, the abovementioned deputy head of the Russian Central Bank, said. “The launching of renminbi clearing services in Russia will further expand local settlement business and promote financial cooperation between the two countries,” he added.

Introducing stability

Irina Rogova, a Russian financial analyst, told the Russian magazine Expert that the clearing center would become a large financial hub for countries in the Eurasian Economic Union.

The creation of the clearing center and the launch of PVP systems enables the two countries to further increase bilateral trade and investment while decreasing their dependence on the U. S. dollar. It will create a pool of yuan liquidity in Russia that enables transactions for trade and financial operations to run smoothly.

For transactions could also potentially reduce the volatility of yuan and ruble exchange rates.

The center is one of a range of measures the People’s Bank of China and the Russian Central Bank have been looking at to deepen their cooperation, Sputnik reported.

Buying up gold

But one of the most significant measures under discussion in the Davos forum is buying up gold – China and Russia have reportedly pushed for joint organization of trade in gold.

In recent years, China and Russia have been among the world’s top gold buyers, and Moscow has been amassing gold reserves.

In 2010, China overtook Russia as the world’s largest importer, according to data compiled by the World Gold Council.

In 2011, Russia overtook China to become the world’s largest importer of gold, according to data compiled by the World Gold Council.

As the Trump administration’s strategy was to back away from the dollar-centric system, we Deplorables voted for La Familia, for their investment bankers and for the latter’s patronage nexus?”

Dripping contempt for “Mr. I’ll Build the Wall!”; lackluster negotiating skills, Ms. Coulter acknowledged the Democrats’ tactical gaffes. “They don’t have the House, the Senate, or the presidency” – yet it was Democrats who were driving a hard bargain.

Incredibly, Democrats were the ones blowing the whistle on the amnesty and a stand-alone bill in exchange for… nothing. Whereas Trump, “The Great Negotiator” – Coulter’s coinage – pitched up for a $45 billion wall in advance he’d sign anything present company handed him.

Ann Coulter has spoken like a true and frightenedocrat. For their own good Deplorables must allow dissidents to keep President Trump honest.

Posterity.

These are early innings for the ambitious young couple in the White House.

Daddy’s girl and her poodle, Jared Kushner, long to press “floss with位于 world, and local and global elites.” As I pointed out in April of 2017 – back when Trump bombed Syria for Ivanica – Davos is upon us.

“Beflying your country, not your party,” the two want to attend this, the World Economic Forum, also “the ultimate schmooze fest of the elite.”

They’ve arrived

I suspect the duo will accompany Daddy to Davos. And now that The Donald’s unseedy agenda has yielded to the Democrats and the lefties have their lobby. The Deplorables be damned – Ivanica and Jared will receive a warm welcome from the global elites.

Some win and some lose omeone always loses a political struggle. The Boers didn’t win in Europe, so they went somewhere else: South Africa. No, they didn’t make life a living hell for the indigenous Africans. They put a stop to their tribal wars and built schools for them, gave them many useful things which they never had before. The Blacks burned those schools and the Whites just built them again at their own expense.

This try to up hold the savage African Blacks was a mistake, of course. The Whites’ Christian impulses betrayed them. The moral victory extended beyond the White race itself. It is never appreciated by Blacks, who always bite the helping hand and feel resentful afterward rather than thankful. Give a Black a sack of grain and he will only complain that the sack isn’t large enough, or completely full or that it’s not the gift he prefers. He won’t say “thank you.”

When the Africans were hanging out food in Haiti just before the earthquake there in 2010, the disbursements always attracted a large crowd of yelling, jumping Blacks. In those crowds, the adult male Haitians would beat down Black women and children and snatch their shares first. A few times, a gang of Haitian males would walk up, conspire all the food, and then walk away with it. Once, such a gang read the packaging label and mistook the date of manufacture as the date of expiration, then declared that the food wasn’t good enough for them and chased the Whites away.

You can’t really categorize races by skin color. Skin color is a “symptom” of race, but race itself is determined by ancestry and all of their heritable characteristics. The healthiest and most resilient races can cause someone to cough, likewise two different races can have about the same skin color. The Blacks of Africa and the Blacks living in the Western Hemisphere are both Black, and they both have knappy hair, but they are not close relatives: They are, in fact, two quite different dark-skinned races. The Blacks are presenting disproportionate political power in America, and in the Western Hemisphere. The Blacks are a lighter-skinned race, but you shouldn’t call them “White,” as they are distinct genetically and in many other ways from the race that is normally called “the White race.”

In the Americas, our Whites played the Americans’ own game by the rules that the Americans themselves made up. The Americans had been killing each other off just as brutally as the Whites did. The only difference is that Whites usually won on reprisal. Not always: The Comanches Nation threw the White frontier backwards about 300 miles for a while. At the time, their ruler was a Mexite: half-White, half-Comanche. But in the long run our Whites defeated the Comanche too. Still, any American Nation that could have conquered North America would have done so. They were in balance, militarily.

The White man came with technological advantages and a social organization that proved decisive. If you blame the White man, then you blame his superiority, not his intentions and not his methods.

In the Middle East, we were muddled too much and to bad effect. But the blame for that muddling belongs to the Jews, not to us Whites. There are, as I said, always losers in every social and political struggle.

Illinois pro-gun-control AG candidate robbed at gunpoint

Is this the character who wants to adjudicate and educate others?

by neeldoknows

Aaron Goldstein, a gun-control advocate seeking election as Illinois Attorney General, was robbed at gunpoint by three men who failed to obey the city’s strict gun-control laws. He was in a local park posing for a campaign photo when he came face-to-face with the consequences of gun-control laws. He was in a bizarre turn of events, Goldstein refused to give a detailed description of his attackers. We wonder: why not?

While on his campaign tour, anti-Second Amendment Democrat Aaron Goldstein stopped for a photo-op in a Chicago neighborhood. However, as soon as the smug liberal sought for the cameraman’s attention, he was robbed.

Leading this campaign in his State, Democratic candidate for Illinois attorney general Aaron Goldstein has relentlessly emphasized gun ownership and the National Rifle Association (NRA), hoping to deliver more rigorous gun control to his constituents. Unfortunately, he got to see his campaign rendered无效.

Illinois attorney general hopeful and staunch gun control advocate Aaron Goldstein was posing for a photo-op in gun-controlled Chicago’s Albany Park on Thursday afternoon, January 18, when he was suddenly robbed at gunpoint by three armed criminals who refused to follow the city’s strict gun laws, The Daily Caller reports.

Since he was unarmed in accordance with his own gun control policy, all the emasculated liberal could do was stand there humiliated by his own principles as the armed thugs effortlessly stripped him and his camera crew of their possessions.

The irony couldn’t be thicker as he and his constituents embarrassed themselves when he was stripped of his belongings, leaving them wondering how much they lost.

And Salt’s accurate assessment above only scratches the surface of the West’s duplicity and criminality. Tillerson’s repugnant statements also included this gem, as reported by Daniel McAdams in “Breaking – Tillerson Declares United States’ Syr ia Plan: ‘Assad Must Go!’”:

“U. S. troops will remain in Syria to prevent the Syrian government from re-establishing control over parts of Syria abandoned by a defeated ISIS. So the legitimate government of Syria will be removed by the United States and its military occupation from reclaiming its own territory? This is supposed to be a coherent policy?”

Tillerson’s regime change utterance, the familiar “Assad must go” line, represents criminal duplicity, since it is the Syrian government and its allies who are defeating Western terror proxies in Syria. If Assad goes, the terrorists will definitely flood back to a U.S.-occupied, sectarian, failing state in the Middle East.

As McAdams points out, Libya (which pre-invasion had the highest HDI in Africa) now hosts slave auctions (as well as being a U.S.-occupied country). “About half of this country’s male population perished in Iraq (from 2003-2011)” thanks to that inversion (and this figure does not include over 500,000 children and about one million others murdered by pre-war sanctions). And of course the Kiev junta’s downward-spiraling political economy – another imperial project – is also a disaster.

Finally, the dictators that refugees must be returned to are those that are trying to get back to a U.S.-occupied, sectarian, failing state in the Middle East. But again, that is just the tip of the iceberg.

The U.S. and its Coalition vassals including Canada – seek to destroy Syria. If Tillerson’s declaration is anything to go by, this is what will happen, and the overseas Holocaust will deepen. Those who control the crumbling U.S. Empire must really be Satan’s.

Mark Taliani combines years of research with on-the-ground observations to present an informed and well-documented analysis that refutes the mainstream media narratives on Syria.

The New Media? Whatever for? I’ve got my Mainstream Media

Imperial disaster

By Mark Taliano

U.S.-Secretary of State Rex Tillerson recently announced that the American occupation of Syria would continue until three conditions are met:

- ISIS must be destroyed
- Assad must go
- Refugees must be returned to Syria

Disingenuous

Their words are an obscenity. They are also a smoke screen to disguise actual realities and imperial intentions. Not only is the political situation in Syria and throughout the Middle East subject to American Nuremberg Principles, but the dictators themselves are either unattainable or redundant, and therefore doomed to fail – which is the intent of this newspaper.

The first demand, that ISIS must be destroyed, is intentionally unintelligible unless interpreted as the killing of all “terrorists” in Syria.

Where can one beat a deal like 100+ copies of The First Freedom for $35 or $39? Each issue contains information the “mainstream” preachers may not touch. Why so many lies? To propagandize the counterterror for taxes spent on their war against humanity, the War on Terror.

The so-called Free Syrian Army’s “free ride” with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) could be short-lived, according to Myles Hoenig, an American political analyst and activist.

Syrian militant leaders were reportedly in the United States demanding funding for an alleged CIA-powered TLP program to “confront Iran’s influence.”

Free CIAArmy

Representatives of the so-called Free Syrian Army were reportedly pressing Americans to revive the program that provided military aid to the militants fighting against the government of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad.

“Although it’s in the U.S.’s CIA and military corporate interest to do so, and Congress is certainly out to hurt Iran, things are far too complicated here in the U.S. to openly return to the battle in Syria. Even though the CIA does what it wants clandestinely and with very little oversight, the public mood is not open for overt action,” Hoenig, a former Green Party candidate for Congress, told Press TV on January 17.

“Congress also reluctantly supports the Iran nuclear deal. It knows its standing in the world is at rock bottom and any attempt to harm what little “control” it thinks it has over Iran’s nuclear program would backfire in other ways,” he added.

“The European powers adamantly behold the deal and foreswearing the U.S. in the recent elections in November is just another factor in the U.S.’s impotence, as much of the campaigning will be on how President Trump has taken the U.S. to such depths of universal derision that treating water is the best they could hope for after November,” the analyst commented.

“The Free Syrian Army may just get what they want, as again the CIA has its own funding source and powerful interests keep it isolated from the campaigning and public exposure,” he noted.

“But even with Saudi Arabia’s influence and reputation growing in the Trump White House, which is serving as the main regional power opposing Iranian influence, in time we can see this all crumbling in, with Jared Kushner and Donald Trump’s financial dealings among Saudi princes coming under greater scrutiny by the media.”

Zog approves $500mn missile deal with Saudi Arabia

The U.S. State Department recently approved a possible $500 million package of missile system support services to Saudi Arabia in defiance of global calls for Washington to stop providing Riyadh with arms support due to the regime’s war crimes in Yemen.

The Defense Security Cooperation Agency made the announcement in a statement on January 17, saying Congress had been notified of the decision.

Congress now has 30 days to review the proposed sale, but is not required to take any action.

The potential sale follows a request by Saudi Arabia for continued technical assistance to its Patriot Legacy Field Surveillance Program, Patriot Advanced Capability 3 and Patriot Engineering Services Program.

The package also includes spare parts and logistical support for Patriot and Hawk missile systems.

Last month, the U.S. Army awarded Sikorsky, a Lockheed Martin subsidiary, a manufacturer, a contract worth nearly $200 million to supply 17 Black Hawk helicopters to Saudi Arabia.

The deals come as the U.S. is under pressure to suspend its arms sales to the Saudi regime, which has been waging a brutal military campaign of aggression against Yemen since 2015.

Jobs for a single industry

At least 13,600 people have been killed since the start of the war.

During his first trip to Saudi Arabia last year, President Donald Trump signed a $110 billion arms deal with the Saudis, with options to sell up to $350 billion over a decade.

The J Factor

Facilitated by Trump’s son-in-law and senior adviser Jared Kushner, the massive package includes missiles, bombs, armored personnel carriers, combat ships, terminal high altitude area defense (THAAD) missile systems and munitions.

The announcement generated a backlash in Congress, with Republican Senator Rand Paul promising to block work at least parts of the package.

Blood money

The Trump administration is looking to loosen restrictions on American arms sales to boost the country’s weapons industry.

The move seeks to ease export rules for military equipment “from fighter jets and drones to warships and artillery,” according to officials familiar with the plan.

Ankara starts cross-border shelling

There is no other option but to carry out a military operation in the Syrian enclave of Afrin, said Turkey’s defense minister. The operation had “de facto started” with cross-border shelling, he added.

Turkey would keep discussing its operation in Afrin with Russia, Nurettin Canikli said on January 19 in an interview with broadcaster AHaber.

The Kurdish YPG militia confirmed the Turkish minister’s announcement of the shelling in Afrin region, saying it started around midnight and continued into the next morning and targeted Kurdish villages.

According to Turkey’s news agency Anadolu, at least ten howitzer shells were fired on targets in Syria by Turkish artillery deployed in the Kirkuk and Haska districts of Hatay province. The Turkish military said they were preventing the creation of a “terror corridor” connecting Syrian Kurds enclaves along the border. RIA-Novosti cited an YPG source as saying some 70 artillery rockets coming from the Turkish side had landed in the Afrin area.

As the Turkish military appears to be preparing a new operation in Syria, their engineers have reportedly completed the first phase of a security system along a wall that has been erected on the Turkey-Syria border. Spanning 20km of the border, the “Kayî Border Security System” features sensors and remotely controlled weapons to defend Turkey against possible trespassers, Anadolu reported.

Politicale realities

When two worlds collide

The problem for Brussel's new members from east of Berlin have a different concept of European values than their Western peers. Large former members of the Russian and Austrian empires might even label the "Eastern Bloc," they generally define European values through a Christian perspective. And yet the popular, contemporary, foreign, and British. Furthermore, many had historical experiences of conflict with the Turks. And yet the Eastern and Western countries of the bloc is a major bugbear for the latter. So much that several of them, including Poland, Slovakia and recently established the "Wage/Union" initiative, demanding wage equality. Even if E.U. Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker conceives how "in a Union of equals, there can be no second-class citizens." Yet, any attempt to bring Eastern European closeness. And yet the Eastern and Western Belgium will also have the effect of exposing demographic difficulties in richer members, making them even more reliant on migrant influx and last. Kipling's "East is East, and West is West" argument was made in a different time and about an even wider chasm. However, the deep and abiding differences. And Iron Curtain is descending across Central Europe. The difference now is that battle is between an increasing European distrust and unification. And that's why warning of a potential "Polexit" should be taken a very seriously.

EDITOR'S NOTE

"Democracy" and "mediacracy" aren't exactly interchangeable, but they're getting close. If it's a real contest that has gone wrong the way we need a recount, otherwise a new vote keep the pollsters "voting" until they get it right. Usually the outcome is long decided before any "election," even if an unstable EU could decide the situation. If you don't want to participate in the vote, you're not even when tickets to the game aren't selling well. Print more money, offer reverse interest, start the Holocause halftime show, keep 'em voting.

Turkey President Erdogan says that Ankara plans to launch an operation to occupy a border region in the northern Syrian city of Manbij as Turkish warplanes launched air strikes on the key crossroad. In addition, Ankara has sent military vehicles and a ground operation in the northwestern border region of Afrin in Syria.

Prime Minister Binali Yildirim said in a televised speech the day that Turkish government.

armored forces have started an air campaign in order to destroy elements of the YPG. Turkish fighter jets carried out 11 raids on Ain Dackeh, Marmanin, Tal Ráf, and Ain Jannah, Marmanin and villages near Afrin in the northern countryside of Aleppo.

Afrin and Manbij are controlled by the YPG, which Ankara views as a terror organization and the Syrian branch of the outlawed Kurdish Workers' Party (PKK).

Turkey has again sent military vehicles and hundrends of troops to the border area, having deployed troops to northern Syria in August 2016 without Damascus' OK under the pretext of fighting terror in the fight that is trying to besiege our country," said Erdogan. Meanwhile, the so-called Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF), a U.S.-backed Kurdish militia, on January 20 attacked Turkey's crossing under crossing-border slash as a false pretense for an offensive in Syria. The SDF, which controls swathes of north and east Syria, said it would have a choice but to defend itself if attacked.

Syria has censured both the Austrian and Turkish plans for a fresh wave of unilateral military operations on its soil. Damascus views such measures as a threat to its security.
U. S. intends to create large new border force in Syria

There are two general theories about the protests that are taking place in Iran. According to the Iranian government and establishment, it is the widespread discontent is over mismanagement of the economy that has particularly hurt poorer Iranians. The other is that we are seeing a replay of a personal tragedy of the Middle East Intelligence Agency (CIA) and the British MI-6.

Bad faith

The Iranian public’s expectation that the nucleard deal would lead to improved in their lives were wrecked by Donald Trump's decertification of the agreement and expectations of American support on the table. The U. S. Embassy was moved to Tehran. The vanishing nuclear deal and struggling economy bore fruit in the 2018 government budget which, besides subsidies on food and government services while increasing fuel and commodity prices. Religious institutions controlled by the Supreme Religious Council and the business entities run by the Revolutionary Guards were reportedly spared the cuts, fueling popular anger.

If Donald Trump had really cared about the protesters or democracy, he would have said nothing about the protests. Instead, he appears intent on using the Iranian government's suppression of demonstrations to finally kill the nuclear deal by autocratic sanctions. He has sweetied five times, supporting the Iranian people to seek democracy but also giving the Iranian government a club to use against the demonstrators by claiming that they are tools of foreign governments, which is exactly what it is doing.

However, given the history of foreign interventions in the Middle East, is the United States or Israel plausibly involved in the demonstrations? The answer to that is both yes and no. There is considerable evidence that the United States and possibly Israel, joined by Saudi Arabia, have set up several command centers in Iraq and Afghanistan to support the protests. They have been using social networking as well as radio broadcasts to encourage the people to get out and demonstrate. One such station called AmalNews, broadcasting from outside Iran, called on demonstrators to attack police stations and government buildings. It looks like a U. S. government front manned by Persian speaking Israelis. It's actuality ability to drive the demonstrations appears, however, to be questionable.

On the covert action front, neither the CIA nor Mossad has the resources on the ground to infiltrate and direct crowds of people to act, so the Iranian government claims that there are outside agitators can largely be regarded as propaganda for its own domestic audience. The CIA's infrastructure in Iran was devastated in the 1990s and never effectively reconstructed. The Agency post-Director George Tenet also concentrated heavily on paramilitary activity and lost much of its ability to spot, assess, recruit, train and run agents. Developing a spy network in a country like Iran where the United States lacks any physical presence and does not even have an Embassy is a daunting task.

Who or what is feeding the unrest in Iran?

security analyst Alexander Zhilin says that by agreeing to deploy offensive NATO weapons systems in close proximity to Russia’s borders, Eastern Europe’s leaders have effectively sold out their citizens and turned them into “human shields.”

In fact, until Americans deployed their offensive weapons, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Poland, Romania – none of these countries were included in the list of strategic targets for [Russia’s] nuclear forces,” the retired officer said.

Uncertainty

“We didn’t regard them as any sort of serious threat at all. And the composition was, they were at a high level” as a result, he added.

Unfortunately, Zhilin noted, today given that foreign powers are deploying weaponry up to and including nuclear-capable offensive systems in close proximity to Russia’s borders, the situation is different. According to the expert, it’s clear now that if an armed conflict were to break out between NATO and Russia, these frontline States would suddenly find themselves at the center of the fire.

“In other words, by placing American weaponry in their countries, the authorities of these Nations have turned their own people into the front line,” and, adding insult to injury, “done so on the cheap,” the observer noted. In effect, “thanks to betrayal by their own national elites, the people of Eastern Europe have become hostages.”

And these taxpayers now pay taxes to maintain what are effectively NATO occupation forces, but would be doomed in the event of a hot phase of a third world war. That’s the drama here,” the analyst commented and that some 230 individuals were currently undertaking training in its inaugural class.

Russia’s Foreign Minister Lavrov says the presence of American troops in Syria and Iraq is illegal and that they must completely leave the Syrian soil.

Takfiri terrorists group together with a coalition of foreign powers are more than ever in face to face battle with the resistance, and has instead been repeatedly accused of targeting and killing civilians and hampering Syrian President Bashar al-Assad’s government operations against Takfiri terrorists.

The Syrian government has on many occasions said the coalition has not gained any approval from Damascus to conduct its operations in the Arab country. Syria calls the coalition “an illegal occupation force” and NATO’s sild force “traitors.”

This is not to say that the U. S. and Israel are not heavily focused on Iran. In a recent conference, National Security Adviser H.R. McMaster claimed that the United States “would maintain its presence in the region.” Ezra Cohen-Watnick, the National Security Council’s senior director for intelligence, has previously commented that the White House intended to use American spies to “spur the ‘Arab Spring’ in Iran” and the Iranian government in Tehran.

CIA spies again haunt Iran

With that objective in mind, in June new CIA Director Mike Pompeo created a special Iran combined task force under Michael D. Froman, named the Dark Prince or Mike Ayatollah, a controversial but highly regarded Middle East specialist who himself is a convert to Islam. D’Andrea has reportedly been very active, but reconstituting a network takes time and is, of necessity, work done carefully and methodically. Pompeo, in his desire to reform the Agency, has more recently announced that the Agency will be working to recover its “viciousness” — but it is presumably not there yet.

Posturing for war

Late last year, NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg said that the alliance would maintain its presence in the Baltic States, Eastern Europe and “as long as necessary.” Russia has repeatedly warned that if the U.S. were to deploy advanced NATO weapons systems on its borders as a threat.

The alliance has been building up its presence in these countries with a political and military crisis in Ukraine turned into a broader diplomatic crisis in relations between the West and Moscow, which seems to justify its hump.

Stressing that NATO is now engaged in the “inflation of a bogeyman, a frightening Russia,” Zhilin suggested that their aims are, at least in part, geared at “diverting our strength and resources by demonstrating their readiness for intervention. And Russia will have to react to this.”

Coming out from under those who call themselves Jews

We find ourselves engaged in a limitless foreign sea.

By John Peoples
firstfreedom.net

Today, self-hating liberals and greedy conservatives claiming to care about the “civil rights” of all Black and Third World people discarded that very useful working class of our brothers and sisters, upon the garbage heap of history. Those who watch the markets today see the Jews not practicing “hate” but kindness, which is the very root word (kind: from the old English of Germanic origin, related to ‘kin’). They believe that the same man who does not take care of his own family is “worse than an infidel.” This also applies to one’s racial kindred.

Whites also have roots, deep roots

In references to “ancient Israelites” by Thomas Jefferson, “Professor Gilbert Chinard, one of the distinguished biographers of Jefferson, stated: “Jefferson was less wrong than the time was to promote a renascence of Anglo-Saxon primitive institutions on the new continent. Thus presented, the Newtonian and the Humean systems did not exclude the Jews for all time, your hands. I warn you, gentlemen, if you do not exclude them, in less than 200 years our descendants will be working in the fields to furnish the substance, while our forefathers left for their descendants the right of being legislated and enforced at the point of a bloody bayonet. This was the opening of Pandora’s Box for all kinds of holy so-called “civil rights” legislation, the founding Jewish of the NAACP and the ADL in the early 1900s, the opening of the gates to all sundry, accomplished in the disastrous Immigration Reform Act signed into law on 3 October 1965 by Socialist President Lyndon Johnson. Now, one of the distinguished delegates having assembled in Philadelphia in the Spring of 1787 to draft the United States Constitution, the anti-anglo Saxon party, having grasped the multi culturalism, diversity, racial equality, integration, mixed race marriages, political correctness, feminism, destruction of the family, many families, sodomite, lesbian and fascist (transgender gender) rights, these wars on Christianity, all out war on traditional White Southerners, war on private property, taxes upon taxes, radical environmentalism and gun control – compare a short list agenda based on the Communist Manifesto.

What we have today in the late USA is clearly visible: cultural radicalism leading the country down that Gadarene Ship of Dooms, the most divisive issue ever threatening the very existence of our Nation. Multiculturalism, moreover, is being legislated and enforced at the point of a bloody bayonet, is spreading, and已久 the wings of the same filthy bird.

In a 1997 speech, Communist President Bill Clinton praised the multiculturalism, saying: “Thanks to the right, we...”

Deceptions versus revelations:

Anglo-Saxon or British-Israel Theory. It teaches that the British and American peoples (Caucasians) are the ten lost tribes of Israel, that Britain is Ephraim and America is Manasseh, that all people of Israel are now being fulfilled with British and America and never will be fulfilled with Jews, that there are vital distinctions between Caucasian and non-Caucasian, that the same kind of people nor ever will be and each has a different destiny. These are just a few examples.

Jews hijack Founders’ vision

The Founders’ aims for a Nation made up of Jews would soon come to fruition in the Lincoln, Marx and Engels War of 1861 followed by a Radical Republican Reconstruction of the Southern States and Amendments, the 13th, 14th, and 15th, ending slavery and giving Black citizenship (they are now federal property) and the right to vote. These “ancient” nations were forced upon the South at the point of a bloody bayonet. This was the opening of Pandora’s Box for all kinds of holy so-called “civil rights” legislation, the founding Jewish of the NAACP and the ADL in the early 1900s, the opening of the gates to all sundry.

Aryan Nation

Harsh words! In those days a man like Franklin could speak his mind – the truth – before an exclusively White Christian Congressmen and Statesmen (not politicians) without fear.

Let us now come to Thomas Jefferson, the Declaration of Independence, ancient Israel and “ancient principles.” When the committee was appointed to draw up a formal declaration of independence, it had Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, Roger Sherman and Thomas Jefferson chosen to prepare the initial draft. John Adams told Jefferson: “You are a Virginian, and a Virginian ought to appear at the head of our dedicatory address.”

Preparation and background

Jefferson had begun the study of Latin, Greek and French at the age of 16. At 11, he had entered the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg as an advanced freshman. After his graduation, he returned home and immediately commenced five years of intensive study with George Wythe, first professor of law in America.

At a young age, Jefferson reached early adulthood, he had gained proficiency in five languages. He had studied the Greek and Latin of the ancient and English history. He had carefully studied the Old and New Testaments.

Revelation of the method and the murder of spirit

A Page from the Cryptocracy’s Psychological Warfare Manual by Michael A. Hoffman II

Revisionhistory.org

This isn’t a column about eutopism or the Fox Sisters, but a call to arms. It is not a call to mass suppression of spirit, soul and mind; in other words, a page from our own psychological warfare manual.

In the June 5, 2006, edition of the New York Times, there appeared on one third of a page A9 an article entitled “9/11 Terrorists: Could They Have Been Deceived?”

If we were in the alchemical “Must Be” stage of the “Making Manifest of All Conspiracy Buffs, A Chance to Compare”

9/11 terror attacks were U.S. government sponsored. The article was titled “For 9/11 Conspiracy Buffs, A Chance to Compare”

“Conspiracy buffs, a chance to compare”

New York Times

The anomaly that is the collapse of World Trade Center building 7, which was not attacked in any discernible manner, but mysteriously fell anyway, was cited rather than avoided. Also noted by the Times were incendiary topics such as the collapse of the World Trade Center towers through “controlled demolition,” and the fact that “the military command that monitors aircraft ‘stood down’ on the day of the attacks.”

If our time has come, let us die bravely. That is the cry that is heard on every side. From one end of this world to the other, there is none who do not cry, ‘Save us! Save us!’ And no voice answers but the groan that is heard from every mouth—‘Woe is me! For the ruin of my heart!’” (Isaiah 26:11, KJV)

One way to rouse the public against its own government is to make it look ridiculous, even laughable, in the eyes of those who are outside of it. But if the public were to- be made to associate the Nixon administration with the Third World “coup” masterminded by the United States and European countries, it would be more likely to view the present administration as a continuation of the same type of government. This is the strategy that was used in the Watergate investigation by the House Select Committee on Internal Security. The committee was able to show that the Nixon administration had engaged in a range of illegal activities, including wiretapping, burglary, and perjury. But instead of focusing on these activities, the committee tried to divert attention from them by presenting evidence that was clearly designed to discredit the administration. This strategy was successful in a number of ways. First, it allowed the committee to avoid confronting the core allegations that the administration had engaged in wrongdoing on a large scale. Second, it allowed the committee to present its conclusions in a way that was more likely to be believed by the public. Third, it allowed the committee to avoid the scrutiny of the media, which was likely to be critical of its work. In short, the committee’s strategy worked, and it is likely that similar strategies have been used by other administrations in the past and will be used in the future. But it is important to remember that the public is not always fooled by such tactics, and that there are limits to what can be accomplished through manipulation of the public’s perception.
M meets with 500 non-White invaders who obtained “Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals” (DACA) benefits that were later revoked due to criminal and/or gang involvement, and have not been deported, new figures provided by Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Chuck Grassley show.

The Center for Immigration Studies (CIS) says these cases are 25 percent of those who lost DACA status due to criminal and/or gang involvement.

Only about 30 percent of the ex-DACA criminal aliens have been removed or were in Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) custody as of November 2017.

According to United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), who provided the figures, 2,127 individuals had their DACA status revoked due to criminal activity.

USCIS provided the following breakdown of the terminations of the cases of these DACA terminations:

- Removed from the United States: 562
- In ICE Custody: 905
- In ICE Custody: 535
- No Record of Removal, Detention or Release by ICE: 940

Total: 2,127

“While it is reassuring that USCIS is revoking DACA benefits for criminal gang members it identifies, it is concerning that almost as many criminal alien DACA beneficiaries have been released as have been removed to their home country,” Jessica Vaughan from the CIS said.

Most of the terminations occurred months to years after the Trump administration issued a new DACA rule.

Maurizi, an Italian investigative journalist for La Repubblica, smirking the stench of fraud that covers the entire case, has been pushing for two years to get her hands on the correspondence between the U.K., U.S. and Swedish governments pertaining to the case in order to pull back the shroud of the Wash ing ton-orchestrated propaganda that colors the case. A British tribunal refused to release any documents on the grounds that it had to protect the Federal Emergency Service’s relationship with foreign authorities.

That tells you all you need to know. Julian Assange has lost seven years of his life because sticking dirty Washington wanted revenge on Assange for exercising the U.S. Constitution-protected right of a free press, and the striking dirty governments of Sweden and Britain did Washington’s dirty work. What we know for certain is that Assange is totally innocent and that there is no honor and no integrity in the U.S., Swedish, and British governments.

reaching for straws

We also know that FSA terrorists were amongst those who terrorized people in Aleppo for years.

The FSA, alongside other terrorist factions, including ISIS and al Nusra, have terrorized Syria and Syrians for years.

Naturally the Western media prostitutes and the criminal politicians will mention none of this. But the truth is there for all who seek peace and justice. Presumably, Western populations would not support the FSA if it was revealed that they were the dupes of the CIA and Israel.
The Wall, the sound and the fury: and not much else

By Fred Reed

With regard to Mr. Trump’s Border Wall, I am skeptical. After reading your recent article about it, I am even more skeptical that I am not an authority on Border Walls. In fact, I have been an authority on Presidential travel. This may surprise readers. Yet it is true. So all that follows is by the nature of speculation. Be warned.

Still, though I may be horrifically wrong, and different numbers can be obtained by assuming different types of a border wall, I suggest that the following represent the kinds of questions that need to be answered. Further, it should be incumbent on those promoting the Wall to produce prices and times that make sense.

First draft

All right, Mr. Trump has eight prototypes, but they run to 30 feet high, made of concrete, and go six feet underground to prevent tunneling. According to rumors among the border authorities, some go considerably deeper, and some prototypes are made of other materials. Here we will assume a hypothetical prototype, which we will call the Wall prototype. We will ignore rebar. Actually, a glance at the photograph shows that, whatever they be made, they are more than six inches thick. Six inches is, I believe, a generous assumption.

The volume of concrete in the entire wall would thus be 2,000 miles x 5280 ft x 36 ft x 0.5 ft x 10 ft = 26,100,000 cubic feet. This will weigh 22,185 lbs per cubic foot, so the entire wall would weigh 22,185 lbs x 26,100,000 cubic feet = 575,433,000 pounds or 297,705 tons.

Now, the Wall prototype will have to be built in prefabricated sections at a remote construction site. The planned site for the Wall on site is flat, flatter with a lot of six-wheeler eighteen-wheelers. Donkeys would seem inadequate, helicopters excessive. Fabricating each section in situ would seem the way to go. The volume of concrete in a section would need to be something very different, but you would need a lot of trucks.

Since I don’t know the weights of the prototypes, the foregoing calculations may be off. Show me how, and by how much for each prototype.

A mile being 5280 feet, each mile of the wall would require 5280 x 8.5 sections, or 62,016. The entire large wall would be 5280 miles x 6210 sections per mile, or 3,242,000 sections. That’s $62,100 truck loads.

Assume that the sections were manufactured exactly in the middle of the 2,000 mile stretch of the U.S. border, and that we would have to truck an average of 500 miles to its place of installation. If built in California, an average of 1,000 miles. Buy trucking stocks.

Of course more factories would mean fewer miles per section. So figure Mr. Trump must be asking Congress for money for a bunch of factories. Otherwise wouldn’t think he was serious.

Now, a concrete sail 30 feet high would presumably require a strong foundation to resist high-wind forces by satisfying a forty knot wind. In fact, a high, heavy concrete wall presumably needs a strong foundation just to collapse sideways in soft earth. Simply placing it in a six-foot ditch would not work. No.

Assume a foundation a foot wide on each side of the wall section and, as noted, six feet deep to force migrants to dig a seven-foot hole. Again, just a guess from one who seldom builds international walls. The required volume of concrete would thus be about 2,000 miles x 5,280 feet/mile x 6 ft x 2.5 ft, or 126,750,000 cubic feet.

All of this would have to be trucked to its place of use from its place of mixing, and quickly enough to prevent premature hardening. If some stretches of border are too distant or the terrain not adequate, roads will have to be constructed and concrete mixed nearer to the Wall.

Note that federal projects’ type wall proper to the volume for the foundation, we get 126,720,000 plus 190,000,000 cubic feet, or 316, 800,000 cubic feet. This will weigh 316,800,000 x 22,185 = 695,14,720,000 tons, all of which will have to be carried to the site of installation. Buy more truck stock.

Star gazing

What will the Wall Trump cost? Duh, but would NICE IE? I find these questions in order. If you have suggested that the entire wall project cost could be between $8 and $12 billion. And, internal DHS assessments suggest the cost could be higher.

I can think of no greater authorities on heavy construction than a pack of ideological yowls in the White House who have probably never seen a shovel. The New York Times says that $60 billion, and $150 million a year to maintain.

The government doesn’t know how much the Wall will cost within a factor of about 9, or else it is lying. Both are consistent with federal practice. Noting that federal projects’ type wall properly very large overruns. Note also that in federal contracting a common tactic, which I saw often in my years covering the Pentagon: to underbid the project by 20%, and then when the project is too far along to be cancelled, to discover that the cost will actually be, heh, rather more.

Over $57 billion figure comes to $35,500,000 per mile, or $57,165 per section. The $21.7 billion figure gives $850,000 per mile, or $57,472 per section. At $8 billion, $4,000,000 per mile, or about $6,441 per section. So you really think the government can buy a 36 by 8.5 foot section of reinforced concrete wall, truck it a long distance and erect it for $6,441 per section. You think the cheapest of the prototypes would cost so little?

How long will it take to complete this cement F357 Wall? I mean Wall. I mean, Wall. Reports put time for completion at three years. That’s 660 miles per year. Ugh... Probably the bad news is that for one mile a month, looks ambitious – over twenty a day. These are huge new concrete slabs requiring a massive crane to set them in place, after which they would have to be tied to neighboring slabs in some manner and, presumably, a foundation poured.

One of course putting up 621 per month requires that the factories manufacture 621 per month. This is certainly not impossible, but will take rather more commitment that we are likely to see.

Let us be charitable and assume a mile for a month, 2,000 months. The Wall take 167 years. Ten construction crew working at the optimistic rate of a mile a month would take 1.67 years. Mr. Trump has at most 83 months left in office, which would mean a whole month, come to 42% of the Wall.

Now, I do not know whether Mr. Trump could find the Pacific Ocean on a map of Hawaii. I make no judgment on the matter. However, a developer of real estate can reasonably be expected to know something of costing construction.

Conclusion

If I were a cynic, which of course I am not, I would wonder if Mr. Trump had been talking about building the Wall to excite his rubes with not actually doing much about immigration, their chief focus. Trump may be a trifle scathing, suggesting some sort of an idiot, or even a half of a politician. Do we really expect him to send federal marshals to chase away illegals from businesses that depend on them to shut down agri business in California, leave citrus crops to rot, shutter slaughter houses and put CEOs in slam? Nah. Let’s talk the Wall, a distracting sparkling toy. No, what is going on is that Mr. Trump, like a cave fish, so will probably have made arithmetical shenanigans which will bring howling mobs of construction workers to their knees, and hey, close enough for government work.

U.S. needs to limit Cold War habitat and end its militarism

By Finian Cunningham

The National Defense Strategy unveiled by Defense Secretary Jim Mattis in January of this year marked a radical shift in the spending priorities of the Pentagon away from Cold War projects and towards counterterrorism – a move that has long been advocated by military analysts, but one that will certainly dismay many of the military’s traditional allies. This is a welcome development, and one that will undoubtedly be welcomed by many of the country’s allies and partners.

However, the US military budget is still far too large, and the US must therefore continue to work towards a more sustainable defense policy. The country’s defense budget is currently $700 billion, and it is clear that this is unsustainable in the long term. The US must therefore continue to work towards a more sustainable defense policy. The country’s defense budget is currently $700 billion, and it is clear that this is unsustainable in the long term. The US must therefore continue to work towards a more sustainable defense policy. The country’s defense budget is currently $700 billion, and it is clear that this is unsustainable in the long term.

Media Irritants meddling to subvert Trump

Eleven U.S. congressmen have urged the State Department to axe funding for “independent” (fellow traveler) media outlets in Hungary.

President Trump has been joined by ten of his peers signing a letter urging the State Department to axe funding for “independent” media outlets in Hungary.

In the letter, the senators denounced actions by the U.S. to fund so-called “opposition media” and said it amounted to meddling in domestic politics of a democratic country. Minister Lazarov said it was regrettable that Washington, “instead of conducting normal dialogue, is trying to prove its leadership using such confrontational concepts and strategies.”

The blatant reality is that the Pentagon is making a pitch for ever more federal spending on America’s already gargantuan militarized economy. Listening to James Mattis, one might think the U.S. military is being starved of investment, thus threatening national security.

This is after the U.S. government voted last year to increase annual military spending by $50 billion to a record high of $700 billion. Not even during the Cold War was the U.S. military budget anywhere near the current outlay, according to comparative data cited by respected U.S. economist Stephen Romer. The U.S. military budget is about fourteen times that of Russia and four times that of China.

In order to justify this stupendous largesse with American tax dollars, the Pentagon is compelled, out of logistical necessity, to constantly portray the world as a war-filled place.

“We are facing increased global disorder, characterized by decline in the long-standing rules-based international order – creating a competitive, multipolar world order, volatile than any we have experienced in recent memory,” states the National Defense Strategy.

Ironically, as Russian intervention in Syria helped drive Islamist and terrorist mercenary army, the U.S. is now shifting its rationale for military spending from terrorism to Russia. In fact, under the current administration of the U.S. economy is largely dependent on a military-industrial complex. Over half the nation’s economic output is directly attributable to federal spending on the military. This is a massive, taxpayer-subsidized economy driven by militarism. And yet, American capitalism and its claims to be the paradigm for “free enterprise” and “private ownership.”

So, $8 to $70 billion. The government can probably buy a 36 by 8.5 wall with $8 billion. They are probably buying a 36 by 8.5 wall with $8 billion. They are probably buying a 36 by 8.5 wall with $8 billion. They are probably buying a 36 by 8.5 wall with $8 billion. They are probably buying a 36 by 8.5 wall with $8 billion. They are probably buying a 36 by 8.5 wall.

Chapter V
October 3, 1991. I’ve been breaking up my work on the FBI project with some stout and rather deep thoughts around our building. Last night I finished our perimeter-alarm system, and now I have some rough and ready work on our emergency escape tunnel.

Along both sides and the back of the building I buried a row of pressure-sensitive pads, which will be wired to a light and an alarm buzzer inside. The pads are the sort which are often installed under doormats inside stores to signal the arrival of a thief. I dug out some long metal strips sealed inside a flexible plastic sheet, and they are waterproof. Covered with an inch of soil they are not detectable, but the strip will be visible if anyone steps on the ground above them.

This method could not be used in front of our building, because nearly all the ground there is covered by the concrete driveway and parking area. Considering and rejecting an ultrasonic detector for the interior of the building – and we will know when.

In order to keep the light source and plumbing system safe, we decided to place them inside the fence post on one side, with a very small and inconspicuous reflector mounted on the other. I had to draw on my engineering background a bit of tinkering was necessary to make everything work properly.

But this was no problem, at least. The blasting gelatin is sensitive enough to be initiated by one of my homemade lead azide detonators, and 100 pounds of it will be enough for anything. I have to load my main charge, and when if Unit 8 finds more explosives, regardless of what they are or how they are packaged.

I have configured the blasting gelatin into an empty apple sauce can, primed it, placed the batteries and timing mechanism in the top of the can, and wired them to a small toggle switch on the end of a 20-foot extension cord. When we load the truck with explosives, the can will go inlaced the back, where we can see the switch. We’ll have to poke small holes in the walls of the trailer and the cab to run the extension cord and the switch into the cab.

Everything is now ready. Tomorrow, Henry – will drive the truck into the freight-receiving area inside the FBI building. Before he gets out of the cab he will set a switch for two years, either while he is unconscious or when he is evaporated – except for a hard core of libertarians who were still suspicious.

All in all, it has been depressingly easy to deceive and manipulate the American people – whether the relatively naive “conservatives” or the spoiled and pseudo-sophisticated “liberals.” Even the libertarians, inherently hostile to all government, should have seen this coming along when Big Brother announces that the new passport system is necessary to find and root out “racists” – namely, us.

And we really were the only people who were the only thing at stake, the existence of the Organization would hardly be threatened if the race riots were to be made free. Slavery is the just and proper state for a people who have grown as soft, self-indulgent, careless, credulous and heavy-handed as we have.

Indeed, we are already slaves. We have allowed a diabolically clever, alien minority to put chains on our souls and our minds. We are being taught to see – and to believe – slavery than the iron chains which are yet to come.

Why didn’t we rebel 35 years ago, when they took us away from schools and began converting them into racially mixed jungles?

Why didn’t we throw them all out of the country 50 years ago, instead of letting them use us as cannon fodder in their war to subjugate Europe?

Why didn’t we rise up three years ago, when they started taking our guns away? Why didn’t we make a final end to this obnoxious and illegal alien invasion? We could have gone down in the sewers of the East, instead of meekly allowing ourselves to be disarmed.

If the Organisation had not rebelled, if all that has been imposed on us in the last 50 years had been attempted at once. But because the chains that bind us are not quite strong enough, perpetually reinforced, and link by link, we submitted.

The adding of any new, link to the chain was never enough for us to make a break about. It always seemed easier and safer – to go along. And the further we went, the easier it was to go just one step further.

One thing the historians will have to decide – if any of my men survive the history of this era – is the relative success of our efforts, and the degree of self-inhibition, link by link, we submitted.

That is, can we justly blame what has happened on the part of the .50 caliber subversion, carried out through the insidious propaganda of the controlled mass media, the schools, the churches you can. The Emmer & Co. are fighting a large share of the blame on inadvertent decade – on the spiritually debilitating life style into which the Western people have thrust themselves to slip in the twentieth century?

Probably the two things are intertwined, and have the same origin on both causes.

Brainingwash has made decade more acceptable to us, and decade has made us less resistant to brainwashing. In any event, we are too close to the trees now to see the outline of the forest very clearly.

But one thing which is very clear is that much more than our freedom is at stake. If we fail, our government will be completely destroyed.

If we fail, God’s great Experiment will come to an end, and this planet will once again, as it did millions of years ago, move through the cosmos – without us.

October 11. Tomorrow is the day! Despite the failure of Unit 8 to find so much explosive as to have the truck parked near the FBI building.

The final decision on this came late in the afternoon in a conference at Unit 8’s headquarters. Henry and I were both there, as well as a staff officer from Revolutionary Command – an indication of the urgency with which the Organization’s leadership views this matter.

Ordinarily Revolutionary Command personnel do not become involved with unit actions on an operational level. We receive operational orders from and report to Washington Field Command, with representatives from the Eastern Command Center participating occasionally when matters of special importance must be decided. Only twice previously I have attended meetings with any other than the heads of the various divisions.

So the presence of Major Williams (a pseudonym, I believe) at our meeting this afternoon was most unusual. It was actually at my request. I had to come up with an answer as to what we were going to do.

As it was decided, we calculated that we should have at least 10,000 pounds of TNT to be stored in a single, large compartment under the southwest corner of the building in a wall vault.

As carefully as we could, we calculated that we should have at least 10,000 pounds of TNT to be stored in a single, large compartment under the southwest corner of the building in a wall vault.

We have given up hope of assembling the necessary quantity of explosives in this way, however. Although a large portion of explosives are stashed away on the same day, the explosive is stored in small batches and access is very difficult. Two of us, at least, have to go underground to get our explosives out of the tunnel for use against the FBI building. The trigger system and lay out of the FBI building.

One thing the historians have to decide – if any of my men survive the history of this era – is the relative success of our efforts, and the degree of self-inhibition, link by link, we submitted.

That is, can we justly blame what has happened on the part of the .50 caliber subversion, carried out through the insidious propaganda of the controlled mass media, the schools, the churches you can. The Emmer & Co. are fighting a large share of the blame on inadvertent decade – on the spiritually debilitating life style into which the Western people have thrust themselves to slip in the twentieth century?

had gotten the ammonium nitrate head up into Maryland with their truck to rob a military arsenal. I gather from what Ed Sanders says that we have a legal on the inside there who will be able to help.

But, as of this afternoon, there has been no bomb left in the arsenal as Command isn’t willing to wait any longer.

The pros and cons of going ahead with what we have now are these:

1. The plan was badly broken by continuing to arrest our legal, upon whom the Organization is largely dependent for its financing.

2. If the supply of funds from our legal is cut off, our underground units will be forced to turn to robbery on a large scale in order to support the organized activities.

Thus, Revolutionary Command feels it is essential to strike the System immediately with a blow which will not only interrupt the legal, but also cut off our legal, at least temporarily, but will also raise morale throughout the Organization by embarrassing the System and demonstrating our ability to act.

From what Ed reported, we can see that these two goals have become even more pressing than the original objective of knocking out the computer bank.

On the other hand, if we strike a blow which does not do some real damage to the System’s secret police, we may not only fail to achieve these new goals but, by forewarning the enemy of our intentions and thereby making our moves more difficult to hit the computers later. This was the viewpoint expressed by Henry, whose great gift is his ability to always keep a boil head down. If we strike in this part of tomorrow’s action, despite his feeling that we should hold off until we are certain that we can do a thorough job.

I am not sure that the Revolutionary Command also understand the danger in hasty, premature action. But they may take into consideration many factors which we cannot. Williams made it clear that it is imperative to throw monkey wrenches into the FBI’s gears immediately, otherwise they will flatten us like a steamroller. Thus, most of our discussion was centered on the narrow question of just how much damage we can do with our present quantity of explosives.

If, in accord with our original plan, we drive a truck into the main freight entrance of the FBI building and blow it up in the freight receiving area, the explosion will take place in a large, central courtyard, and the occupants will fall on all sides by heavy masonry and open to the sky above. Ed and I both agree that with the present quantity of explosives we will not be able to do any substantial structural damage under those conditions.

We can reap havoc in all the offices with windows opening on the courtyard, but we cannot hope to blow away the inner facade of the building or to punch through to the sub-basement where the computers are. Several hundred people will be killed, but the machine will probably keep running.

Sanders pleaded for another day or two for his unit to find more explosives, but his case was weakened by their failure to find what was needed in the last 12 days. With nearly a hundred of our legal’s being arrested every day, we can’t take a chance on waiting even another two days. Williams said, unless we can be certain that those two days will bring us what we need.

The bombs, recapture media and ensuing “compensation”

Those who hear the compassion singsong all their lives may refuse to go at doing their own thinking.

By Christine Miller

And all that generation were gathered unto their fathers: and there arose a new generation which did not know their fathers nor what the allies victors had done to their fathers.

I saw a video made and promoted by the German establishment. It dealt with the deportation of a Brazilian woman to Bosnia, and how the woman had to walk 1,000 miles to get to Spain. This video was all touchy-feely in showing the bad condition of the house she had to re-tem the and how she was being beaten up and neglected. It did not have any modern features like a nice bathroom, modern kitchen appliances, etc. The implication was she was a Brazil’s von Belgrado and that a woman who had to walk 1,000 miles was even history.

Bladder and transport of property as the existing woman had to walk away from houses, farms, factories and take nothing with him, neither gold nor jewelry under penalty of death. “Leave them nothing but a handful of dirt.”

Benesch, Czech president

Since our cities were pulverized and uninhabitable, the expellees were all pushed into the south, into the bad part of the country. There were four and had to accept a family of five. They were Germans, our kith and kin. We were more or less forced to give them shell holes in our homes. We did not welcome them, but of course, open arms nor appreciate that imposition.

Hussein, Kyrgyz president

He explained that when today’s asylum seekers came, they met open arms committees with teddy bears, balloons and welcoming signs. These are not Germans, but mostly Moslem “asylum seekers,” but a traitorous Merker and her supporters in the Christian Democrats have let them in.

They all should be deported to a Nation under Sharia, except that I am afraid they would not be accepted; for those Nations are not, in this respect, so naive the Germans.

It is estimated that “asylum seekers” will cost the German government thirty-four billion. This money does not come from heaven, but the German taxpayer. It is only $12,000 per family and the welcoming committees do not have to pay (like we did) for foreigners streaming into Germany today under the pretext of being persecuted.

Many even have the nerve to go back on vacation to a country from which they fled claiming persecution.

Economic “refugees”

It is difficult to hit the computers later. This was the viewpoint expressed by Henry, whose great gift is his ability to always keep a boil head down. If we strike in this part of tomorrow’s action, despite his feeling that we should hold off until we are certain that we can do a thorough job.

3,700 arrested in Iran

Violence breaks out at several rallies, leaving at least 22 people dead.

3,700 people were arrested last month across cities in Iran as a rare wave of anti-government protests and unrest gripped the country, according to one parliament member.

Tehran MP Mahmoud Sadeghi reported the official figure, which is much higher than previous estimates, via the State-run ICANA news agency on January 9.

Different security and intelligence forces have conflicting reports over the number of detainees. The Iranian authorities have just started to release political prisoners, and it is difficult to know the exact number of detainees, Sadeghi was quoted as saying. According to official figures, more than 300 were previously reported to be arrested after a series of protests and demonstrations that began in December.

Violence broke out at several rallies, leaving at least 22 people dead.

The unrest spread to more than 80 cities and rural towns in late December as thousands of young and working class Iranians voiced anger at corruption, unemployment and a deepening gap between rich and poor, in the biggest anti-government demonstrations since 2009.

What we finally decided is to get our bomb directly into the first-level basement, which also has a freight entrance on 10th Street, next to the main freight entrance. If we detonate our bomb in the basement underneath the courtyard, the contends will make it substantially more effective. It will almost certainly collapse the basement floor into the sub-basement, burying the computers.

For this operation, we should hold off until we are certain that whether it will do enough structural damage to the building to make it uninhabitable for an extended period. Without a detailed blueprints of the basement floors and a team of architects and engineers we simply can’t answer that question.

The backstage to the coming is that relatively few freight deliveries have made there, and the entrance is usually closed.

Henry is wishing to call the truck right through the door of the basement.

So be it. Tomorrow night we’ll know a lot more than we do today.

The money with which those other ten million dollars were paid must not come from their pockets, but from a nebulous entity, the insurance company. Yet those claims that insurance companies have been paying to the poor and unemployed, is the entity public general, meaning we pay their awards. The more claims which have to be paid the higher the premiums we must pay. This makes the system more expensive.

Simple arithmetic

Grievances also seemed to revolve around foreign Iran’s policy and its spending on groups in Syria, Lebanon and Iraq.

The protests started in Iran’s second-largest city of Mashhad on December 28 before spreading to Tehran.

The provincial governor in northeastern Mashhad was quoted as saying 85 percent of detainees had been released after signing a pledge not to re-offend.

Iranian authorities have accused the United States, Israel and Saudi Arabia of involvement in orchestrating all of those anti-government demonstrations.

The government restricted access to Internet and social media apps as a security measure.

On January 3, General Mohammad Ali Jafari, head of Iran’s Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC), declared “the end of the edition.”

Tens of thousands also took part in pro-government rallies to show support for the government.
The mass murder of Whites under Black rule in Haiti

The Caribbean State of Haiti serves as a striking reminder of just how deadly the practice of slavery could be. By 1804, the colony had established a pattern of mass killings, murder and terrorism that destroyed the White population of Haiti, along with all agricultural production and a thriving economy. Haiti, once the most prosperous colony in the Western Hemisphere.

The island, originally named San Domingo, had become a center of Spanish activity during the time of the conquistador Hernando Cortes. The Spanish retained a small garrison at La Isabela on the island, which is today known as the Dominican Republic. The western part of the island was settled by French traders in 1697, and the French claimed the entire island. It was here that the ferocious race war took place.

The local Amerindians, called Caibies by the Spanish on account of their cannibalistic habits, had been reduced to insignificance by a combination of Spanish religion, slavery and European diseases to which they had no immunity. As a result, the French started importing African slaves to work in the colony.

“The Jewel in the Crown” supplies half of Europe’s sugar needs

By 1789, San Domingue was the jewel in the French colonial crown. Its ideal climate and naturally rich soil produced immense quantities of sugar, coffee, rum, and cotton. In addition, the Caribbean was the key to the French colonial empire. By mid-century, San Domingue had become the most prosperous colony in the French empire.

San Domingue’s sugar output supplied not only all of France’s sugar needs, but also the bulk of Europe’s. It is estimated that San Domingue supplied as much as 60% of all the sugar consumed in Europe. It was also a major source of coffee, tobacco, and cotton. But San Domingue’s success was not without its price. The island was characterized by severe racial tensions and frequent rebellions.

Black exterminates Whites

By the end of the uprising in Haiti, every White man, woman and child had been exterminated. The French, who had been fighting for years, had been exterminated, the Black population then turned on the mixed-race population and wiped them out as well.

The French National Assembly then rescinded the earlier decree and issued a new one saying that the colonists themselves could decide on what form of government was best for their own particular circumstances. When this news was made known in San Domingue, it heightened tensions. The mixed-race population in particular were in an uproar after being informed that they had the vote and then only a few months later told the opposite.

Chaos reigns for ten years

The chaos continued until 1802 when a decree was issued for an end to the war. But the Black troops were sent by Napoleon Bonaparte to restore order to the island. The French forces, under the command of Napoleon’s oldest brother, Jean-Baptiste, had been rebellion. The insurgents were ruthlessly hunted down and the main rebel leaders forced to flee to England. The French then occupied the island.

Just when the situation seemed to have stabilized, two disastrous events occurred. The first was the news that the Napoleonic government had given permission for the second was the outbreak of yellow fever on San Domingue. The possibility that the institution of slavery could return to France was a terrifying prospect. But unlike the already thirty-thousand Black French troops that had arrived earlier in the year were dead.

The new troops were also laid low by yellow fever, and the rebellious Blacks, largely immune to the disease, stepped up their attacks against the French. The situation on the island deteriorated once again.

The conflict then took an even nastier turn. The French authorities decided that the only way to end the war was to kill all Black inhabitants over the age of twelve years. The reasoning for this was that any adult Black who had, for the previous decade at least, waged a war against France never went back to work in the fields. The same applied to Black women, the French decided, as they were not strong enough to prove themselves to be even more vicious and cruel to captured Whites than their own menfolk. With ruthless efficiency, the surviving French troops pursued their new orders, and many Blacks were killed in this arbitrary fashion. Both sides were plunged into a spiral of hatred and atrocities which seemed to have no end.

French withdraw; Blacks rule

The outbreak of the Napoleonic Wars intervened in developments on the island. France became embroiled in a war with Britain at sea, and the French colonists in possession of San Domingue came under attack. The British navy blockaded the island, cut off supplies to the French garrison, and supplied the rebel Black with guns and ammunition. The most prominent of the Black rebel leaders, Dessalines, launched a number of attacks on the increasingly isolated French garrison in the coastal towns. Dessalines took town after town from the French, and by late 1802, he was re-exterminating all whites taken prisoner. By November 10, 1803, the French could no longer hold out and surrendered to the British fleet off the coast. Of the fifty thousand French troops sent to the island, only a few thousand ever made it back to France.

Massacre of the last Whites

With the French gone, the Black leader Dessalines had a free hand in instituting his own reign of terror against any Whites still unfortunate enough to be on the island State. San Domingue was renamed Haiti in December 1804, and virtually all the European whites who had fled to other islands on behalf of the United States of America) and the first independent Black-ruled nation in the Caribbean. Although disposed of the Whites, those Blacks and the mixed-race population turned on each other in yet another race war. This ended with the almost complete annihilation of Haiti’s mixed-race population, and in October 1804, Dessalines declared his people to be the winners. To mark the occasion, he declared himself “emperor for life” of Haiti.

The same year, Dessalines asked those Whites who had fled to return and help rebuild the economy. A surprisingly large number of colonists took up his offer, but soon discovered the nature of their error.

These “alternative lawful immigration” means include marriage, jobs, family or special visa status because they claim to have been victims of human or domestic abuse, any of a number of means through which they can apply for permanent status.

The TPS renewal was supposed to be a short-term humanitarian relief, letting people who were in the U.S. on temporary programs or even the country illegally stay while their home countries recover from major events. Once the recovery is complete, the status is supposed to end. However, since then, renewals have become almost automatic because the establishment has sought to flood America with as many non-White “immigrants” as possible.

For example, TPS recipients from the Hondurans and Nicaragua have now been allowed to stay for nearly two decades, and the variety has increased from nearly seven years – far longer than the legislation originally intended, far longer than it would anywhere else to “recover” from an earthquake.

The new DHS statement confirmed this latter point, saying that Haiti had “made considerable progress” since 2010, and a “review of the conditions upon which the country’s TPS designation was based and whether those extraordinary but temporary conditions prevented Haiti from advancing toward self-sufficiency,” Under the applicable statute, “the current TPS designation must be terminated,” the statement said.

Then why so much delaying?

“Since the 2010 earthquake, the number of displaced people in Haiti has decreased by 97 percent. Significant steps have been taken to improve the stability and quality of life for Haitian citizens, and Haiti is able to safely receive traditional levels of returned citizens.

“Haiti has also shown a commitment to adequately prepare for when the country’s TPS designation is terminated.”

Kills by U.N.’s Black police scarcely noted

By Jake Johnston

A 5:00 o’clock on the morning of November 13, more than 200 Haitian police officers raided the Grand Ravine area of Port-au-Prince. It was a series of loud explosions, followed by gun fire. For the next six hours, the commotion didn’t stop. The neighborhood was under siege.

What started as an anti-gang operation in a poor and largely forgotten neighborhood in a part of the country where conditions were barely manageable ended in the summary execution of innocent civilians on a school campus.

Those police officers were working with the national police and the French police as part of a plan to break comunism in the country. The French police had turned their backs on the operation, saying that it was “not part of the planned operation.”

Our shock

When I arrived at the Maranatha Evangelical College campus, traveling with a broadcast team from Al Jazeera four days after the raid, it was immediately obvious something heinous had transpired. The blood that stained the concrete was still wet, unable to dry in the blanket of fog and mist that kept the capital unusually cool that particular week. Water pooled in the school’s cloistered walkway had turned a dark red, partially obscuring an empty tear gas canister. The smell of the violence still hung in the heavy air.

Typical and predictable

Classrooms and offices had been ransacked, doors broken down, closets, drawers and bookcases spilled across the floors and through the doorways. Light crept in through holes left by bullets that had pierced through the thick concrete. Since the raid, someone had swept another five empty tear gas canisters and close to 100 heavy artillery shells into a pile.

The morning we arrived, faculty and including recommendations received as part of an inter-agency consultation process, Acting Secretary Duke determined that the extraordinary but temporary conditions caused by the 2010 earthquake no longer exist. Under the applicable statute, the current TPS designation must be terminated,” the statement said.

The competitive collection of “generals” was almost no soldiers, as vividly captured in the book Where Black Rules White (H. H. Pichard).

Near the southern entrance to Haiti’s sprawling capital, Grand Ravine is built on a hillside with picturesque views of the Caribbean Sea. And yet, it’s a downtrodden neighborhood.

Haphazard construction with patio regulation has given neighborhoods such as Grand Ravine little to no infrastructure or government services. Many areas are only accessible by foot. Narrow, misshapen alleys ascend through concrete homes secured with rusted sheet metal.

Amid all this is Maranatha Evangelical College, operating here since the 1940s. Despite the name, it offers classes for beginners and adults budding in painting.
A surge of “populist” political parties threatens to destabilize democracy all across Europe, according to a new think tank. However, its new report says nothing of the mainstream parties whose failures made this possible.

Former U. K. Prime Minister Tony Blair’s Institute for Global Change (IGC) has warned that Europe will become the “new normal” in Europe and “transform public policy in radical ways.”

Defining populist parties as those from the left and right that “claim to represent the true will of a unified people against domestic elites, foreign migrants or ethnic, religious or sexual minorities,” the report says their number has almost doubled in Europe since 2000, from 33 to 63, and that their average vote share in elections nearly tripled from 8.5 per cent to 24.1 per cent.

Rising resentment
Over the same period, it said the number of European countries with populist parties participating in government has doubled from seven to fourteen—creating an unprecedented “populist belt” from the Baltic to the Aegean.

Virginia law takes first step to support sound money

By Michael Mahaney

On January 1, a Virginia law that repeals sales taxes from some purchases of gold and silver went into effect. It represents an important first step toward giving up its regular use as currency and breaking the Federal Reserve’s monopoly on money.

A bipartisan coalition of delegates and senators, including Senator Bob Good (R), Senator Steveヘインツ (R), and Senator Bill 934. The legislation exempts gold, silver and platinum bullion or legal tender coins whose sales price exceeds $1,000. With gold over $1,000 an ounce, a single bullion coin will exceed this threshold.

Under the new law, the exemption will remain in place until June 30, 2022.

The House passed HB1668 by a 99-0 vote. It passed in the Senate by a vote of 38-1.

In practice
Imagine if you asked a grocery clerk to break a $5 bill and he charged you a 35 cent tax. Silly, right? After all, you were only exchanging one form of money for another.

But that’s essentially what Virginia’s sales tax does. By taxing sales at 5% of the sales tax on the exchange of gold and silver, Virginia will treat precious metal specie as money instead of a commodity.

This represents a small step toward reestablishing gold and silver as legal tender, and breaking down the Fed’s monopoly on money.

“We ought not to tax money—and that’s a good idea. It makes no sense to tax money,” former U. S. Rep. Ron Paul said during testimony in support of an Arizona bill that repealed corporate income taxes on gold and silver in that State. “Paper is not money; it’s fraud,” he continued.

The new law’s impact goes beyond mere tax policy. During an event after his Senate committee testimony, Paul pointed out that it’s really about the size and scope of government:

“If you’re for less government, you want sound money. The people who want big government, they don’t want sound money. They want to deceive you and commit fraud. They want to print the money. They want a monopoly. They want to get you conditioned, as our schools have conditioned us, to the point where deficits don’t matter.”

Practically speaking, eliminating taxes on the sale of gold and silver coins across the door for people to begin using precious metals in regular business transactions. This would mark an important small step toward currency competition. If sound money gains a foothold in the marketplace against Federal Reserve notes, people will begin to realize that the stability of gold and silver over the central bank’s rapidly-depreciating paper currency.

LETTERS AND ARTICLES:

DEAR NANCY HITT,

Thank you again for your excellent letter named “A Cecile’s solution” in your recent issue.

I enjoyed your perspective and I agree with your points. However, I would like to add a few thoughts of my own.

Firstly, I believe that the solution to the current situation lies in the hands of the people. We must stand up for our rights and demand justice. This requires courage and determination, but it is not impossible.

Secondly, it is important to remember that the fight for our rights is not just about us. It is about the future of our children and grandchildren. We must ensure that they live in a society that values their rights and freedoms.

Thank you again for your letter. I look forward to hearing more from you in the future.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Even primitives can lure the much more physically powerful lion into a trap, just as those who’ve discovered that a tribe does war by unity defined need work not for their bread anymore, and yet they’ll keep getting the same until turning things around by divestment with force – not “voting” for that greedy ogre to back off.

Lincoln and Marx notwithstanding, the truth at some point will inevitably prevail in spite of all of modern rationalism’s territorial state left. Its resurgence in one form or another, however, remains forever assured. How else would we guess where world bound exception by comparison with what’s constantly left behind? Would you want to be there, end station, nothing new to come upon? Those affected by so much complacent imagery, escapist from the challenges at hand, are Dreamers. They’re scattered in positions of authority such as the one who, desiring nothing beyond repose, suggested closing the patent office since everything had “already been discovered.”

Which brings us to the soul, the universe, no truth regarding any person or nation among contemporaries for under present human reckoning, is irrevocably lost, just as the connection is irrevocable in prayer. I know that computer research however much you will, it’s still men without ideas. Enough of the above. Edison opened many a door, beyond each of which we discovered additional ones beckoning us on where we’re bound. Let’s stop and listen, as always, the silence, giving with it the steadfast, the – revolutionary-thinking process.

And that doesn’t mean derogating what follows. That which cannot be changed for the better, the transience causing more than coming out from under the big money muckmunch who’ve grabbed control of today’s internet technology by hook or crook, while herding us down their yellow brick road.

Nobody’s perfect. Thus no government established, no political party, no leader can satisfy everyone, therefore it shouldn’t try. Let those in charge be of the same real stock as their constituents, however, and a more transparent and humane society than otherwise possible will follow. “Diversity is our strength!” chant those morons succored by a hostile media into piling on the back of an ignominious New World Order. How much “variety” could exist in a regimented totalitarian farm? Not even Greek “more equal” pig

Discretion

As for tolerance we’ve tolerated further of its guises without “compunction” to bear.

...Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms which they have long worn. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide New Guards for their future security.

We see today has gone far beyond any “design” phase of absolute despotism, leaving a “Mr. Smith Goes to Washington” type of politics to pass for that to which (as we once should) worries the Ashkenazi occupying Palestine while calling themselves Jews.

Straight on

This White Mr. Smith is “defending the good of all!” A Liberter will simper. “What about the Blacks, browns, gays, etc.” He, she or it wants to know. Let us reply: Not if the latter choose to receive nothing more from those who built Western civilization’s pillars of freedom, than the privilege of owning a cell phone, air conditioning, all sorts of conveniences now available even among types distracted by drums, passions of short sighted impulses.

Looking out for ourselves necessarily elevates the good of all. Recovering honest means for trading goods and services from the ruling cabal means that competitive math

Two lessons here. Competition remains unavoidable, whether between regimented servitude within the life of a master or when more masterful types meet in sometimes inimical, otherwise friendly, combat. That’s the first instance. But our second lesson is that not only the unwise uninspired flunkies struggle to outdo before the same cabal which (like those flunkies) seeks unarmed booby footing, but those who wish to make a mark on an unpredictable distance; for this research concerns more-honorably-motivated people such as Alabamians defending their homes against foreign invaders.

Competition is a most natural measure of where one rightfully stands. Those who employ others to do their courting, fighting, and shoelace tying know not what they’re missing, but let’s not tell them. We need this Zionist mediacy, a sounding board for all. The PublicKey, this multiculturalism behind antiS or BLiMers who smash people and properties at little risk, knowing that media muckmunch will face it all up as “justifiable outrage.”
